News and Hope, at Last.
Second Lindbergh Statement.
A Week of Fear.
Power of Publicity.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A SEVERE STORM of wind, rain and snow swept the Hopewell countryside all yesterday, with clouds black and lowery, trees shaking in the violent wind. But, within the Lindbergh home, relief and real hope brought happiness for the first time. There was definite news, at last.

WHAT THE MESSAGE was that brought hope, or how it was delivered, has not been made known, but a second public statement, signed by Col. Lindbergh and his wife, made it clear that a message had been received. That message, according to those close to police authorities, assures the parents that their child is safe and well, and they may hope for its return shortly.

The statement issued by Col. Lindbergh informs the abductors of their child that if they are not willing to deal directly with the child's parents, they, the Lindberghs, will deal through intermediaries, acceptable to the kidnapers.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT published and signed by Col. Lindbergh and his wife reads:

"If the kidnapers of our child are unwilling to deal directly we fully authorize 'Salvy' Spitale and Irving Bitz to act as our go-between.

"We will also follow any other method suggested by the kidnapers tha' we can be sure will bring the return of our child."

The men mentioned, Spitale and Bitz, are well known to police and newspapers in New York, because of their influence with the underworld, and wide acquaintance among its members. Spitale's first name is Salvatore. "Salvy" is his nickname.

THE SELECTION, by name, of these two men as acceptable "go-betweens" by the Lindberghs, who presumably had never heard of them until now, indicates that the kidnapers have mapped out a definite plan for the child's return, with payment of the ransom.

The sudden announcement, and the definite names, give every reason to hope that the little boy's return will not be long delayed, and that alone interests the public. News of the child's safe return will cause rejoicing in every home in America.

Spitale and Bitz, in no way connected with the abduction, needless to say, will have the public's thanks for their help, no matter how the child's restitution may have been accomplished.

THERE IS NO doubt that wide publicity, however disagreeable in itself, has made the kidnapers anxious to be rid of the child, and rid of an undertaking of which they under-estimated the danger.

It is certain also that the first reassuring announcement by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh three days after the kidnaping, promising that no steps would be taken, by them, against the kidnapers, if the child were safely returned, had an excellent effect, relieving the kidnapers of panic that might have proved disastrous.

THE POWER of publicity, well used, was illustrated in a previous case, when a little girl, Marion Clark, was stolen from Central Park, in New York, in 1899. The New York Evening Journal offered a cash reward, not for the kidnapers, but for anyone sending information leading to the child's recovery. Pictures of the child were posted up outside postoffices and police stations for many miles around.

Marion Clark was identified, in the arms of the kidnaper, by a passerby who had seen the pictures. The child was returned safe, the reward paid, the kidnapers caught and punished.

IN THIS CASE, there is no thought of punishment in the public mind, only a passionately intense desire for the child's safety.

And the kidnapers may be absolutely sure that no step of any kind will be taken against them by the parents.

THERE IS GOOD in human nature, and deep sympathy. For an entire week, less one day, this nation has thought of nothing but the sorrow of one mother, and the safety of her little boy.

The war in Asia, our government's provisions of billions for corporations in need, the business conditions that depress many, everything has been forgotten. Millions have gone to sleep and have awakened with no thought in their minds but one child's danger.

There has been no other topic of conversation, no other inquiry made of newspaper offices and other sources of information except:

"IS THERE ANY NEWS OF THE LINDBERGH CHILD?"

THE TENSION is at last relieved and hope has come. May disappointment not follow it.

Those that took the child know now that they can act with absolute safety to themselves, receiving the ransom money through intermediaries selected by themselves with no danger of betrayal.

It is to be hoped that an end has come to such anxiety as has not been known in this country since the declaration of war.

KLINE JURY 'PLOT' QUIZ ORDERED

Court Authorizes Inquiry Into 'Tampering' Charge; Trial May Be Postponed

A grand jury investigation of alleged attempts to corrupt and influence prospective members of the jury for the trial of Mayor Kline and his deposed Supplies Director, Bertram L. Succop, was ordered today by the Butler County courts.

With the investigation, which will start Wednesday, there appeared the possibility that the Kline-Succop trial will not begin next Monday as scheduled. District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced today that if the investigation revealed widespread tampering he would ask for a postponement.

Seventeen persons, 15 of them members of the jury panel, already have been subpenaed to appear before the grand jury Wednesday.

INQUIRY ORDERED

The investigation, ordered by Judge Thomas Watson, was asked by District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, of Butler County, to which venue the trial was transferred on petition of Kline and Succop.

Negley's petition follows the arrest of two persons and the search for two others—one a woman. Under arrest are Howard Gross, engineer at East End Police Station, and William H. Cook, of Hilliard, Butler County, charged with embracery.

Said to be implicated also is a Butler County clergyman, reported to have accompanied others on visits to some of the 75 members of the panel from which the Kline jury will be picked.

MISSING SOUGHT

Investigators from Butler and Allegheny counties and state troopers are searching for the missing man and woman.

District Attorney Negley, in asking for the investigation, said he had been reliably informed that efforts have been made "by divers person to corrupt, influence or bias" members of the jury panel.

Mayor Kline's counsel, Attorney Charles B. Prichard, today expressed opposition to any delay in the trial. He added:

"Just now it appears that some overzealous person who saw an opportunity to advance himself interfered. This person used bad judgment."

BRIAND, PEACE APOSTLE, DIES

PARIS, March 7.—(AP.)—Aristide Briand, "apostle of peace," died at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. Marx, his personal physician, said he died in a coma after a stroke. He passed away peacefully without suffering.

It was the end of one of the most active career in modern French political history.

With his passing another name is added to the roster of the war chiefs who have died.

Clemenceau is gone, Foch and Joffre are dead. Field Marshal Lord Haig and Admiral Lord Fisher, of England, are with them; Gen. Diaz, the Italian hero, and Admiral Von Tirpitz have passed on.

Powers Loses Plea To Supreme Court

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 7.—(AP.)—Harry F. Powers, under sentence to be hanged March 18 for the slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Northboro (Mass.) widow, was denied a review of his case by the State Supreme Court today. The court made no comment in refusing the appeal.

Culbertson Widow on Trial

Mrs. Laverna M. Culbertson, 37, went on trial before Judge Samuel H. Gardner today, charged with the killing of her husband, Albert L. Culbertson, in their Mt. Lebanon home, November 15.

Dressed in chic, dark clothing, Mrs. Culbertson appeared nervous and tense as she arose to hear the indictment against her read.

LAST END JUROR

Defense attorneys asked him:

"Would it change your opinion, if it was brought out that there had been drinking in the Culbertson home on the night previous to the shooting?"

"No."

Assistant District Attorney Earl T. Adair, the prosecutor, asked:

"Would the fact that a woman is the defendant make you sympathetic in this case?

"No."

He then was accepted.

The next two jurors chosen were Mrs. Elenora Antoni, of 1931 Huron street, and Daniel J. Doughty, a machinist, of Moon Township.

PARENTS CHOSEN

Mrs. Antoni, under defense questioning, said she was the mother of several children; Doughty said he was the father of four.

After frequent challenges by defense and prosecution, four more jurors, two men and two women, were selected. They are:

Edward Startz, a clerk, of 130 South Graham street; Joseph Campbell, of 7051 Hamilton avenue, an employe of the Board of Education; Eva Moser, of 3016 Merwyn avenue, a statistician, and Mrs. Elizabeth Kuhlman, of 615 Southern avenue.

Mrs. Culbertson's attorneys are Oliver K. Eaton, I. Elmer Ecker and Joseph N. Mackrell, Register of Wills.

The prosecution, it is understood, will ask for a first degree murder verdict, with life imprisonment.

LEETSDALE MAIL SACKS LOOTED

A rifled mail pouch, the lock broken, and a sack of mail, intact, were found along the Big Sewickley Creek near Fair Oaks, today by four Ambridge youths, Frank Jakes, Stanley Verona, Joseph Kosto and John Dallella.

The sacks were turned over to Postmaster Samuel Lambie, of Ambridge, by Chief of Police A. W. Nolan, of Leetsdale. Consigned to Leetsdale, they had been thrown from a New York-Chicago mail train of the Fort Wayne Railroad early today, postal authorities said.

No registered mail was among the 40 or more letters opened and left in the pouch. The mail in the intact pouch was delivered, Lambie said, as postoffice inspectors began a hunt for those who rifled the other.

Al Smith Petitions Filed in Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, March 7.—(INS.)—Petitions to place the name of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, on the Pennsylvania primary ballot were filed today at the State Bureau of Elections.

The action will give Democratic voters of the state the opportunity to indicate whether they will support Smith, Democratic nominee in the 1928 campaign, or Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, for the presidency.

Pray Lindbergh Baby Comes to Orphanage

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 7.—(AP.)—Five hundred motherless children at St. Michael's Orphanage are praying that the kidnapers will leave the Lindbergh child at that institution. Each day they hurry to the door, but there has been no child on the step.

DROP TO 5 FORECAST TONIGHT

One Dead, Many Injured In Gale Which Disrupts Traffic Over Wide Area

A belated winter continued its icy sway over the Pittsburgh district today, crippling traffic and wire communication, periling motorists and causing acute suffering among thousands of destitute.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted a temperature of from 5 to 10 tonight, with snow flurries. Sub-zero temperatures were reported from the Plains States today.

The mercury fell to 10 this morning at the official Weather Bureau station, the lowest of the winter, while a 32-mile northwest wind cut like a knife across the faces of pedestrians.

Mt. Lebanon reported a temperature of 2.

Trooper's Statement No Cash Was Asked Varies With Friends

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 7.—(AP.)—Capt. J. J. Lamb, of the state police, announced today that no demand for ransom ever has been made for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby and that neither the Lindberghs nor the police ever have had any communication from the kidnapers.

This statement was in direct contradiction of information given out by investigating forces at the Lindbergh estate last week that a note had been pinned to the

GRILL SAILOR AGAIN

Nurse's Sweetheart and Friend Quizzed in Quest for Clues

By FRANCIS A. JAMIESON

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 7.—(AP.)—The law and two underworld leaders worked feverishly and independently today to locate the kidnapers of curly-haired Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

The pair of gang characters named by Col. Lindbergh himself were scurrying around among their own kind, seeking some lead that would justify their appointment as "go-betweens."

A famous private detective whose aid, it was definitely learned, had been enlisted by a close friend of the Lindberghs, was working behind a veil of secrecy on theories of his own.

The co-ordinated forces of city, county and state officers, spurred on as the hunt became more intensive, pressed their investigation, scrutinizing every tip, however wild, and questioning many a man and woman.

LINDY AGENTS ASK HELP

Salvatore "Salvy" Spitale, New York racket chieftain, and his henchman, Irving Bitz, the pair picked by the anxious father as his "go betweens," kept their movements shrouded in mystery, but during the night statements attributed to them contained pleas for the kidnapers to get in touch with them, and an offer to "play ball" with the child-stealers.

The first statement, printed by the New York American as coming from Spitale, said in part:

"Nothing in the world would have brought me into this very delicate situation if I did not know what it is to be a father, having two children of my own, and if I did not know that the missing child is not only the child of the Lindberghs, but the child of America."

The second statement, printed by the New York Daily News, said in part:

"We were asked by a representative of Col. Lindbergh to act for them in the hope that the kidnapers would get in touch with us. We hope for no personal profit whatsoever."

Spitale added that "as a man of my word" he could insure the kidnapers they would get "a square deal" if they "played ball" with him.

JOHNSON STILL QUIZZED

Henry "Red" Johnson, sailor suitor of the Lindbergh baby's nurse, arrested Friday in Hartford, was questioned most of the night in Newark, Connecticut officials had turned over to New Jersey authorities all records of their questioning of Johnson and of two trans-Atlantic conversations they had with Scotland Yard, presumably about Miss Betty Gow, the nursemaid.

Johansen Junge, a friend of Johnson, was also questioned by Frank Brex, chief of Newark detectives.

Deputy Police Chief Schaibler, of Hopewell, said he and another detective located Junge in Englewood, where the man's wife is a seamstress at the home of the

Princeton President Aids Lindy in Hunt

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 7.—(INS.)—An automobile in which Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University, and Mrs. Hibben, were reported to be passengers, came out of the Lindbergh estate today.

Dr. Hibben recently offered his services to his friend, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as an intermediary with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby. One report held that Dr. Hibben had been visited by "Salvy" Spitale, newly-appointed go-between in the kidnaping case.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN TRUNK

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—(AP.)—The body of a blonde woman, believed to be 50 to 60 years old, was found today inside one of two trunks taken to the morgue from a rooming house at 824 North Fifth street.

She is believed to have been beaten to death by a slayer who took well-planned precautions that her body should not be discovered until he had a chance to get away.

The discovery came after the proprietor of the lodging house, suspicious of the actions of a man who engaged a room there last Saturday, called police.

Detectives broke a new, heavy padlock. Inside they found another trunk, also locked. On top of the smaller trunk was a neatly folded, freshly laundered woman's night gown, a piece of underwear and a black and white sweater. Other women's wearing apparel, including underwear and some dresses, had been stuffed around the inner trunk. The entire trunk was covered with black oil cloth.

Wires Fall in Gale, Lindys' Home Dark

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 7.—(Universal.)—Late last night, as the tension of waiting grew and the day's rain turned to snow and sleet, electric wires to the Lindbergh home suddenly went down, weighted with ice, and the lonely house on the hill was in darkness.

Then a squad of linemen arrived to fix the wires. They announced the trouble would soon be fixed. The Lindbergh home was in darkness for almost 30 minutes.

POPE ASSAILS LINDY CRIME

VATICAN CITY, March 7.—(INS.)—Pope Pius XI, through a spokesman, Monsignor Ottaviani, assistant secretary of state, today assailed the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. He declared:

"The crime is an execrable one. It horrifies everyone and we hope the child will be returned safely to its parents while the American law and police succeed in punishing the guilty."

BROOKHART URGES $2,000,000,000 FOR HIGHWAY SYSTEM

HOLDS PROJECT WOULD REVIVE PROSPERITY

By
SMITH W. BROOKHART,
U. S. SENATOR FROM IOWA
As Told to
KENNETH CLARK
(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, March 7. Transportation is the life-blood of the nation. Good roads are as essential, indispensable to the economic health of the nation as the blood veins to the human body.

We have advanced far since the stage coach days which saw these states, spreading westward from the Atlantic seaboard, welded into an indissoluble union. With energy, courage and resourcefulness, we have conquered pioneering hardships by the sheer force of initiative and dogged determination.

Yet, with all our progress, our industrial skill, our system today has serious defects. We need only to look about to see the millions of unemployed, shelterless, starving, to know that something is wrong. Their plight is the result of a combination of complicated causes. One of our great faults has been our lack of organized national planning. We have left too much to chance and to greed. That may be a natural corollary in the rapid growth of a young nation. It is not an excuse.

Derelict on Roads

Nowhere have we been more derelict than in providing for our transportation needs. Especially is this true in our road and highway systems. We have built hazardly, pouring out millions in federal and state funds, with precious little to show for our expense and our pains.

WE HAVE NOT A SINGLE TRUNK HIGHWAY WORTHY OF THE NAME CONNECTING THE ATLANTIC WITH THE PACIFIC, OR THE NORTH WITH THE SOUTH.

To meet this pressing need for a unified system of national highways, covering and traversing every section of the country, I introduced in the Seventy-first Congress a bill for the construction of 25,000 miles of trunk highways. With certain modifications, I am reintroducing the bill at the present session.

Let me review briefly what the bill proposes to do, and then we can discuss the reasons why its enactment is vital not only to fulfil our transportation requirements, but to stimulate business recovery and relieve unemployment.

Outlines Routes

The bill authorizes the construction of three direct ocean-to-ocean roadways, two highways running north and south on each coast, two intermediate highways through the middle west, southwest and as far west, and a system of feeder routes connecting the capital of every state in the country with one or more of the trunk lines. The routes are:

1. From a point on the Great Lakes to a point on the Pacific Ocean in the State of Washington.

2. From Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore., by way of Chicago.

3. From Boston to San Francisco, by way of St. Louis.

4. From New York to Los Angeles.

5. From the District of Columbia, by way of Richmond, through the states of Tennessee and Arkansas, to a point in Oklahoma.

6. From New York to Jacksonville, Fla., following the coast of the Atlantic Ocean so far as practicable, and from a point on such route near Jacksonville to Brownsville, Tex., following near the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, with a branch line south through the state of Florida.

7. From the Western terminal of Route No. 1 to Los Angeles, following near the coast of the Pacific Ocean.

8. From a point not less than 10 or more than 20 miles from the capital of each state to the most accessible main national highway. Highways 2, 3, 4 and 6 shall be connected with the national capital.

Would Avoid Cities

Each highway shall be as nearly straight as possible, except where physical conditions, excessive costs or other reasons make deviation advisable.

My idea is to relieve traffic strains and to expedite passenger and freight traffic by motor vehicles. I therefore provide that no part of any highway shall be within a city of more than 2,000, or within 10 miles of any city of more than 200,000 population. The municipalities, the counties or the states can build short feeder routes between the main highways and the nearby towns or cities.

All highways must be constructed wide enough and durable enough to carry truck trains, and at the same time provide ample facilities for the faster passenger automobiles.

Experts estimate that THE COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT OF THE ENTIRE SYSTEM WILL BE ABOUT $2,000,000,000, or the same amount that Congress authorized for the operations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The financing shall be done by the issuance of United States legal tender notes, which the Secretary of the Treasury is directed to issue from time to time as necessity arises. This would be one of the most effective items in restoring commodity prices which all the economists declare is necessary to recover from the depression.

Drops Toll Plan

In the earlier measure I proposed to redeem the notes within 20 to 30 years by collection of funds from a system of licenses and tolls on the highways. I am striking that feature from the new bill. The government will be more than amply repaid by the stimulation to business, commerce and agriculture which the national highway system would certainly bring.

THERE IS ONLY ONE WAY TO BREAK THE CURRENT DEPRESSION AND TO LAY THE GROUNDWORK FOR A SOLID ECONOMIC BASIS IN THE FUTURE, TO REVIVE BUSINESS WE MUST SET THE WHEELS OF PRODUCTION IN MOTION. TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT WE MUST FURNISH JOBS TO THE MILLIONS WHO ARE WILLING TO WORK, BUT WHO, THROUGH NO FAULT OF THEIR OWN, ARE UNABLE TO DO SO.

This project will do exactly that. Industry and agriculture will benefit immeasurably, not by the dole method of putting the government into the money-lending business to help the bankers who are largely responsible for our existing troubles, but BY PROVIDING AN ENORMOUS OUTLET FOR THE PRODUCTS OF OUR FACTORIES AND OUR FARMS.

Solution for Slump

I venture to say, based on the opinion of experts who have studied the plan, that this project will relieve much of the unemployment in the country today. Every section will benefit. Work will be started everywhere. With the jobless employed again at gainful occupations, with money in circulation and with buying restored, we shall once more return to a sound and healthy basis. This strikes at the very roots of the economic stagnation. RELIEF MEASURES WHICH CONGRESS HAS PASSED ARE MERE PALLIATIVES. WE HAVE ADDED ENORMOUSLY TO OUR DEFICIT AND ARE WORSE OFF THAN BEFORE.

Senator LaFollette has sponsored a bill calling for $5,500,000,000 to launch a nationwide national public works construction program. Hearings on it will start next Wednesday. His is a worthy, sensible idea. My proposal fits naturally and logically into the plan. We should spend at least $2,000,000,000 for national roads.

Who can deny the need for a unified national system of highways? In the more populous sections THE ROADS SHOULD BE AT LEAST 100 FEET WIDE, ESPECIALLY ON THE TRUNK ROUTES BETWEEN THE TWO COASTS. The outer lanes of the highways would be reserved for truck trains; the inner lanes for passenger automobiles and light trucks. We shall have to build these highways some day. Why don't we start now, when by doing so we shall pull ourselves out of the slump?

5 RESCUERS DIE IN WILD SEA

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 7.—(INS.)—Coast guards today were battling heavy seas in an effort to rescue the crew of a two-masted sloop in distress off the coast here as a total of five deaths and 40 missing was exacted by the 70-mile-an-hour gale that has lashed the coast for the past 24 hours.

The sloop is thought to be the Anna, with Capt. Gunnar Peterson, of Atlantic City, aboard. Five fishing boats, containing about 40 men, from the Cold Spring Harbor fisheries, near Wildwood, N. J., were still listed as missing.

Five Coast Guardsmen were believed to have drowned after going out in boats to aid the sloop. Capt. James Turner, Surfman William R. Barton and Machinist Harold Livingstone went out into the seething ocean in one boat. Half a mile from shore it capsized.

Turner, alone of the three men thrown into the water, was washed up by the mountainous waves on shore. A second boat was launched, manned by Boatswain's Mate Marvin E. Rhoades and Surfmen John Barnett and Charles Graham, to search for the missing crew. Once beyond the thundering surf, the boat vanished from sight and nothing was heard of the crew.

NILES KIDNAP INDICTMENTS DUE TODAY

WARREN, O., March 7.—(AP.)—A special Trumbull County grand jury went into session today to consider indictments against two men held as the kidnapers of 12-year-old James De Jute, Jr., of Niles.

Prosecutor B. H. Birrell said he hoped to obtain indictments calling for life sentences upon conviction, but was uncertain what charges would be preferred until all the evidence was submitted. He said it was likely the jury would return indictments today.

Meanwhile a search was still under way for a third man suspected as the leader of the abduction plot. He was described as a former bootlegger.

The other two who said they were Dowell Hargraves and John Demarco, both of Youngstown, were hiding with the boy when they were captured in a secret room of an abandoned gambling den near Youngstown.

Under Ohio law, the men, if convicted, will face prison sentences of one to 20 years. Ten years additional might be added if evidence was found that ransom was demanded, but the father of the child, a wealthy Niles contractor, already has denied that any money was asked.

Life imprisonment for kidnapers is provided in Ohio only when they demand ransom for a child younger than 12 years.

Hargraves, the officers said, was one of two men who overpowered the boy near his home Wednesday and secreted him in the old gambling den and liquor storehouse. Demarco claimed, they said, that he had just gone to the place to buy liquor. The boy was standing on a case of whisky when the officers broke through an inside wall and found him.

The boy's Sunday was a quiet day at home, where his mother is recovering from the shock of the kidnaping.

BABY UNHURT, WALSH BELIEF

Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh returned today from the police conference in New Jersey and expressed the belief that a gang of professional kidnapers have the Lindbergh baby, that they are keeping it well, and that at a time convenient to them they will meet agents of the flier and offer terms.

Col. Lindbergh is almost worn out from the worry, Walsh said, asserting that he talked to the flier.

Suicide Trailed Mile Through Snow

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 7.—Trailed nearly a mile through deep snow drifts, the body of John Litman, 58, was found dead, with his throat slashed, in a stone quarry today. A razor lay nearby. Because the water pipes in his home were frozen he had started out to get water from a spring. Members of his family said he had been despondent due to unemployment.

long pact outlawing war as an instrument of national policy.

It was from that office that he played so important a part in the making of the Locarno pact that he became for all the world "the man of Locarno."

It was as foreign minister that he conceived the idea of a "United States of Europe," a conception which, although it never has taken concrete form, is still being considered by Europe's statesmen.

But it was not only as foreign minister that he made history for France. He was premier a dozen times.

The highest office in the gift of the people was almost within his grasp last May, but some of the policies which he had advocated with all his characteristic enthusiasm had alienated a faction to whom nationalism is gospel.

DENIED HIGHEST POST

So, when the electors voted at the Palace of Versailles it was Paul Doumer, of the dignified white beard, who became president of the Republic.

It was a blow, but the gladiator returned to the arena. When Pierre Laval formed the first cabinet under the new president, Aristide Briand was back as Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Last January the lion heart mier; Lord Asquith and Lord Balfour, of Great Britain are dead. Von Bethmann-Holweg, the German imperial chancellor, died long ago. King Constantine, of Greece, and the ill-fated Charles I, of Austria, reign no more. Czar Nicholas, of Russia, perished.

The bent, shaggy-haired old statesman—he was 69—had occupied the post of foreign minister in one cabinet after another for so long that he had made the office almost his own.

It was in that capacity that he participated in the Briand-Kellog weakened and, sick and weary, M. Briand asked his young chief to appoint a new foreign minister.

Pierre Laval had learned his politics at the feet of Briand and he was reluctant at this parting, not only for personal considerations, but because of matters of high policy.

GIVES UP POST

It soon became apparent, however, that the old master could not go on. Laval asked him to serve as minister of state without portfolio and for a time it looked as though this device would keep M. Briand in the government. Eventually, however, he declined to serve.

That was when he retired to his country place at Cocherel and the nation began to worry in earnest for his health.

His own doctor called in specialists and although their bulletins tried to be reassuring, it became known that Mr. Briand was in bed and that his heart had weakened.

Songbirds Miss Lessons Because Of Divorce

They're in his house in suburban Forest Park, but he can't get in to help with their lessons because his wife sued him for divorce and got an injunction barring him from their home.

But Klaff has plans. He consulted an attorney and said he would seek a court order compelling Mrs. Klaff to teach the birds to sing or give them up.

U. S. EMBASSY UNDER GUARD IN TOKIO

Attacks by Mob Feared; Japs Beat 2 Americans In Shanghai District

International News Service.

TOKIO, March 7.—A heavy guard was thrown about the offices of the American-owned newspaper, Japan Advertiser, tonight when the police received rumors that a mob would attempt to attack employes and damage the plant.

The American Embassy was placed under similar protection and police were stationed about headquarters of the League of Nations Manchurian Commission, of which Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy, of the United States Army is a member.

TWO AMERICANS BEATEN

SHANGHAI, March 7.—(AP.)—Friction between Japanese bluejacket patrols and foreign sightseers attempting to flock into the Chapei and Kiangwan battle areas caused Japanese military authorities today to prohibit anyone entering those zones without passes.

Miss Rose Marlowe, American mission teacher, was beaten by two Japanese in civilian clothes when she entered the compound of the school where she taught to inspect damage caused by the hostilities. Edwin S. Cunningham, United States consul general, filed a formal protest with the Japanese consulate.

H. B. Robinson, United States trade commissioner, of Salt Lake City, Utah, minimized reports that he had been beaten by armed Japanese civilians while sightseeing in Chapei.

He said that while in the Japanese section yesterday he was struck by Japanese plainclothesmen assisting bluejackets in policing the Japanese area.

Japan brought in 5,000 more troops today to bolster its long "defense line" northwest of Shanghai, prompting Chinese government circles to say they feared the invaders might attempt to capture Nanking, China's capital.

The possibility of further inland invasions, the Chinese announcement said, led a plenary session of the central executive committee to designate two cities—Honanfu (Loyang), and Sianfu, seat of Shensi province—as temporary capitals.

Japan to Resign From League

TOKIO, March 7.—(INS.)—Naotake Sato, Japanese member of the League of Nations Council, has been instructed to make formal arrangements for Japan's withdrawal from the league as soon as the Shanghai controversy has been settled.

The action, contemplated for some time, was brought to a head Friday and Saturday at the extraordinary assembly of the league when delegates of the smaller nations openly and bitterly attacked Japan and defended China in the Shanghai conflict.

There is a disturbance centered over New Mexico this morning, causing cloudiness over all the southwestern states and snowfall over the central Rocky Mountain states.

The high is centered over Alberta, highest barometer reported, 30.72 inches, at Edmonton, and extends southeastward across the plains states to the Gulf states. It is causing cold weather over practically the entire country. Freezing temperatures prevail over the Gulf states and frost occurred as far south as Miami.

RACKET CHIEFS AID HUNT FOR LINDY BABY

late Dwight W. Morrow. Mrs. Lindbergh's father. Arthur A. Springer, secretary to Morrow, said Jungle was with Johnson last Tuesday night, the evening of the kidnaping, and that "the object of the questioning is to check Johnson's whereabouts."

Springer said he had known Junge "for a good many years and he has a good reputation."

It was indicated at Newark that Junge would be permitted to return home today. The examination of Johnson had not been completed and therefore Springer was unable to say what the result of the examination had been. Neither Connecticut nor New Jersey officials have given any indication of what they have learned from the sailor. He was questioned at Newark from about 7 p. m. until near last midnight when he was taken to an undisclosed portion of police headquarters.

SELECTION MYSTERY

What led to the selection of Spitale and Bitz and what results, if any, it had brought remained unknown.

One theory was that they had been appointed after a conference, and another that the Lindberghs merely were given the names and told the men were what the underworld knows as "right guys."

Nearby, in the Lindbergh garage, more than a dozen alert state troopers were answering nine telephones that jangled constantly—more tips, more reports that might lead to nowhere, but had to be run down.

More than 20 cars stood in the driveway. They belonged to friends of the anxious parents and heads of vast law-enforcement agencies who were gathered in the Lindbergh home to map out their next move.

Moore Offers to Recall Police on Lindy Request

TRENTON, N. J., March 7.—(AP.)—Gov. A. Harry Moore told newspapermen today that he was powerless to grant immunity to the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, but added that he would be willing to withdraw the police if Col. Charles A. Lindbergh should request it. The Governor said:

"No one can give a pass to break the law. A law is a law. Only a grand jury, by refusing to indict, can grant immunity."

The Governor expressed the opoinion that if the newspapers would "lay off," the authorities might "get somewhere." He went on:

"At first the publicity was wonderful, but now, because of the many wild statements, it is harmful."

When it was suggested to him that the "wild statements" might be directly attributable to discrepancies in information given out by the police, the Governor said:

Cafe Owner Adds To Milk Bottle Clue

NORWALK, Conn., March 7.—(AP.)—Jimmy Bistany, owner of a restaurant on the Boston post-road between Samford and Norwalk, reported to Norwalk police today that he had sold a bottle of milk at 11:30 p. m., Tuesday, to a man accompanied by a woman and baby.

Bistany told police the man, who was riding in a green coupe, answered newspaper descriptions of Henry (Red) Johnson, of Englewood, N. J., detained in Newark, N. J., for questioning in the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

No Ransom Demand Made By Lindy Kidnapers, Police Head Says

nursery window sill demanding ransom and threatening harm to the baby if the text of the note was made public.

It was reported that this note demanded $50,000 for the baby's return, but this never was officially confirmed.

NO RANSOM DEMAND

Capt. Lamb made his announcement today at the morning press conference at which he replied to a long list of prepared questions.

The full list of 21 questions and answers follows:

The family and police both deny there was a note left demanding ransom.

Will the police reveal the contents of the note?

Same answer as number one.

Did any note instruct Col. Lindbergh to announce Spitale and Bitz as intermediaries four days after the kidnaping?

No.

What token, if any, did the kidnapers leave to identify their later communications to Col. Lindbergh from fake messages?

None.

BELIEVE BABY ALIVE

Have the police or Col. Lindbergh received any messages they believe are from the kidnapers?

No.

Do the state police or Col. Lindbergh believe the baby is dead or alive?

We believe the baby is alive.

Was Johansen Junge (husband of a seamstress in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother) released after being questioned in Newark last night?

Yes.

Was the milk bottle found in Johnson's car the property of the company which furnished milk for the Lindbergh baby? (Henry Johnson, friend of Junge and suitor of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nurse, was still being questioned in Newark today.)

I can't tell you anything about the milk bottle as investigators have not reported as yet.

Will Johnson be released under bond or will he be detained further?

That depends on the outcome of his questioning.

Has the report of the questioning of Johnson been received by the state police at the Lindbergh home?

No, not as yet.

DENIES DISAGREEMENT

What are the orders to the state police if the kidnapers, after negotiating satisfactorily with Col. Lindbergh, attempt to bring the baby to the Lindbergh home?

Do everything possible to help them deliver the child.

Has Col. Lindbergh asked the state police not to interfere with the negotiations and the safe return of the baby to the house? Has anyone made this request?

(A). Col. Lindbergh has made no such request. (B). No.

What is the basis for the disagreement between the police and Col. Lindbergh as to the method of procedure in this case?

There is absolutely no disagreement between Col. Lindbergh and the police.

Was the time at which the baby was put to bed on the night of the kidnaping his regular hour for going to bed?

PROBE BABY FARM TIPS

Will you tell the movements of Betty Gow from the time she put the baby to bed until the kidnaping was discovered?

Her movements were the usual movements.

Is it true that police are working on the tip that Johnson, when arrested, was on his way to Saco, Me., where a relative of his, Mrs. Howard Pinkham, has a baby farm?

The investigators assigned to that angle of the case have not reported as yet.

Are there any new clues on the ladder?

None.

If the Lindbergh baby was ill why did Betty Gow leave it from 7:30 to 10 p. m?

The baby was not very ill. It had a slight cold.

When will Col. Lindbergh, Capt. Lamb or someone in authority grant a personal interview to clear many discrepancies in the case?

MYSTERY UNCLEARED

Did Col. Breckinridge (attorney and friend of Lindbergh) see Spitale last night?

Col. Breckinridge did not leave the house last night.

In accordance with procedure insisted on by police, reporters had to submit their questions in advance and were not allowed to ask for more definite answers than the police chose to give.

For that reason several of today's answers failed entirely to clear up matters which are still a mystery. Typical of this was the answer as to Betty Gow's movements between the time she put the baby to bed and the time the kidnaping was discovered.

The police gave answers to all questions, but in many instances the answers didn't answer anything.

Conflicting Ransom Reports Deepen Mystery

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 7.—(AP.)—Has ransom been demanded for the Lindbergh baby?

Capt. J. J. Lamb, of the state police, today said definitely that no such demand ever had been made.

But last week a civilian friend of Col. Lindbergh, closer to him than any police official, said just as definitely that a ransom note had been left by the kidnaper.

Who is right, and what is the purpose of the one who has given misleading information?

Did the civilian informant, who would not let his name be used, think that by erroneously announcing a ransom demand had been made he could hurry the kidnaper into making his demands known lest some impostor reap the reward of his crime?

Was Capt. Lamb following the common police procedure of using the press to mislead the criminal? Did he think that by saying no ransom note had been received he could make the kidnaper believe the first note (if there was one) had blown away and send another which might simplify the police hunt?

Pledge on Ransom Note Broken, Mulrooney Says

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP.)—Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney announced today that although New Jersey police promised last week to give him a copy of a ransom note left behind by the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, they had failed to keep their promise.

Mulrooney told reporters that the contents of the alleged ransom note had been withheld from him. This was only a little while after Capt. J. J. Lamb, of the New Jersey state police, had told reporters at Hopewell, N. J., that there never had been any ransom note, despite previous reports.

The New York police head said he supposed the note was kept from him because of something in its contents the New Jersey police were working on and wanted to keep secret.

Eyes of Brown Dash Hope of Lindbergh

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 7.—(AP.)—A third of the way across the continent last night a telephone wire hummed with information about a baby boy with crinkly blond hair.

At one end was Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. At the other was Dr. John Foley, Waukegan city health officer. The doctor said:

"He reached for the telephone."

Lindbergh said:

"That's what he'd do."

"Brown eyes."

"Brown eyes . . .?"

BABY SUSPECTS HUNTED HERE

Two babies described to police as resembling Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., were being sought today as detectives continued their investigation of the man who was arrested here after trying to telephone the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N. J.

Mrs. Lorain Telson, of 344 Meyran avenue, told police a young woman, dressed in black, with a blond, blue-eyed baby between 15 months and 2 years old, had inquired at her home for persons who had formerly resided there.

Two women and a baby were reported seen on the North Side by persons who told police that the baby resembled pictures of the Lindbergh boy.

Joseph Uleonga, 32, of Wesslyn, accused of having tried to telephone the Lindbergh home from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station, was being held at police headquarters, and it was thought likely that he would be questioned today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court.

Jack Lait Predicts Rescue Of Baby Lindbergh by 'Gentleman Gangster'

By JACK LAIT

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, March 7.—They had to do it. Organized society, dumbfounded and confounded, had to come to the underworld to interpose a power higher than the law when cities, counties, states—the government itself—was helpless in the Lindbergh baby outrage.

In Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz the wise criminologists who advised Col. Lindbergh to call on men who could do something, picked perfectly. Bitz reflects Spitale, of whom he is a colleague.

Spitale is the big shot—rich, keen, literate, courageous, intrenched in politics and feared and revered in gangdom. Picture him:

Tall, lithe, tawny, with the springy step of a sprinter, handsome in a way that one might call Jack Dempsey handsome, a man still well under 40 who has fought with his hands and his brains through violence and all the labyrinths of America's involved system of rackets to where he commands credit in banks, authority over musclers and gunmen, and the affection of many friends because he has never broken his word—his word of honor—the word of honor of a gangster!

GANGSTER'S WEALTH

He might have stepped out of a movie. In his luxuriant apartment overlooking the most fascinating vista of Central Park, he lives with his pretty, soft-spoken and diffident wife and his two children, a boy and a girl who are being educated in a smart private school.

He receives you in a saffron-hued robe of silk. He greets you with an honest smile. There are no "bodyguards" around. No secret panels, no sliding steel doors, none of that hokum.

On the wall of his drawing room hangs a $30,000 tapestry with a Confucian design. An ancient Chinese masterpiece. Along one wall is a hospitable sideboard bearing cut-glass containers of glazed fruits and spiced nuts and confectionery. On another sideboard are decanters of the finest pre-war stimulants and dainty liquers, which he sweepingly offers you.

The furniture is Louis XIV and makes a connoisseur collector's mouth water. His collection of fine books is in keeping and he reads them.

His ambition is to raise his children to be God-fearing and decent citizens, and to keep his wife happy. Salvy is out nights a great deal, but not roistering. The hot spots have not known him for many a moon. He has never been convicted of an offense and it is an axiom among the boys that if he makes a promise he not only will try to keep it—he will keep it—be that promise a favor or a pay-off.

WITH LINDBERGH

He spent the night with Col. Lindbergh and was in the Lindbergh home when the public announcement mentioning him and Bitz as official intermediaries for the stricken father was issued. This may be denied. It is true. Spitale had no definite knowledge of the whereabouts of the child. I know, or I think he would have rushed to wherever it was and taken it by force if need be; his passions are strong about babies; he bars them as merchandise in any sort of rackets, and he has dealt in quite a few. And, incidentally, Col. Lindbergh is one of his pet heroes.

If John Law, dizzy and punch-drunk, had to call on the enemy for help in its dire extremity, John Law chose well. Stand by for results now. Salvy Spitale deals in 'em.

LINDY BABY'S RETURN ASKED IN PRAYERS

Appeals for Divine Aid To Restore Child Offered In Church Services Here

Prayers for the safe return of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., to his parents were offered yesterday in churches of various denominations throughout Allegheny County. Prayers were said in a number of synagogues Saturday.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, of the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, in his morning sermon broadcast yesterday by KDKA, implored intervention for the return of the child.

DR. KERR SPEAKS

The vesper services of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, Amberson avenue, also broadcast, were devoted to prayer and to a plea to the kidnapers. The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor, speaking on "A Little Child Shall Lead Them," said in part:

"The thought and mind of millions of people are drawn into a bond of sympathy because a little child was suddenly lifted out of its love nest by the hands of cruel and heartless men. It is like a miracle wrought in the mind of a nation and we are being led by the inarticulate appeal of a little child to higher ways of thinking that are akin to a process of redemption.

"The tragic suddenness of the news of the child's abduction brought into focus all this romantic admiration and enthusiasm. The tragic suffering caused by the amazing crime immediately drove world affairs from the front page of the press and stirred the hearts of men and women all over the world. There is hardly a home where a prayer has not been offered or where a little child has not fallen asleep with the thought of that lost child in his heart."

OTHER SERVICES

Prayers were offered for the return of the baby yesterday in the Regent Theater, where the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, has been holding services in Trinity Cathedral, by Dean N. R. H. Moor, in the First Lutheran Church, Grant street, by the Rev. Dr. A. J. Hall, in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev. Dr. M. B. Fuller, in the German Evangelical Protestant Church by the Rev. Dr. C. A. Voss, and in the First Baptist Church by the Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty.

More than 700 prisoners in the county jail joined the Rev. A. W. Stremel, chaplain, in a special prayer for the safe return at a service in the institution yesterday afternoon conducted by Maj. W. H. Smith, of the Salvation Army.

Lindy Case Declared Quieting War Talk

The world-wide wave of sympathy for the Lindberghs has replaced the concentrated interest in gathering war clouds, Willard McKay, former instructor in the University of Texas, said in an address in Utility Hall, Philadelphia Building, last night. He spoke before the Pittsburgh Baha'i Assembly. Continuing, he said:

"Just as Col. Lindbergh was an ambassador of good will to France when he made his flight across the Atlantic to France, so Baby Lindy has been the instrument by which the law of love has been established in the world-wide public mind."

Mrs. Morrow Praises Lindy For Courage in Ordeal

By DOROTHY DUCAS

International News Service.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 7.—Tribute to the resourcefulness and courage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in the most trying situation the trans-Atlantic flier has faced was paid him today by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow. She told friends:

"I have never loved him more than now. He is marvelous to everyone—so full of ideas—and energy. It is a revelation to watch him."

The widow of Senator Morrow, whose death last year cut short Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh's tour of the Orient, has been staying at the Lindbergh home here since last Wednesday morning, helping her daughter run the greatly enlarged household and comforting both young people in their trouble.

Herself Spartan-like under the shock of the loss of her only grandchild, Mrs. Morrow's constant fear has been that Anne, mother of the kidnaped baby, would break under the strain.

Mrs. Lindbergh is expecting another baby in September.

But both the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh have proved a surprise to the level-headed, intelligent Englewood society woman. They have kept their wits about them, held on to their hopes of the baby's safe return.

And the Colonel has persisted in keeping his hands on the reins, directing and participating in every phase of the nation-wide man-hunt which has thus far failed to discover the whereabouts of the curly-headed Lindbergh baby.

Mrs. Morrow has always been fond of her famous son-in-law, but her devotion has deepened with his exhibition of character of a different sort than that needed for a trans-Atlantic flight. She tells friends, simply:

"The two young people are wonderful. They are holding up better than anyone dreamed possible."

SENATE PROBE OF WALL ST. DELAYED

Banking Committee Speeds Action on Glass Bill to Change Banking Rules

By WILLIAM S. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The Senate's proposed inquiry into all phases of transactions on the New York Stock Exchange has been suspended temporarily by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, Senator Norbeck (Rep.) of South Dakota, announced this afternoon.

Norbeck said the committee decided at a secret session this morning to take up the Glass bill revising the Federal Reserve and national bank acts to prevent recurrence of bad times. Initiation of the stock market inquiry will be delayed three or four days in the hope that the committee can complete its consideration of the Glass bill.

LEAGUE COURT FIGHT

The League Court fight may get started Wednesday when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee meets to vote on reporting the Root protocol to the Senate. Indications point to a favorable report, now that the committee has adopted the Reed declaration putting an American interpretation on the ban against advisory opinions on American questions. Irreconcilables will oppose the amended protocol, on the ground that the Reed declaration fails to bind any other signatory power.

AID FOR DEPOSITORS

Drastic revision of national banking laws, including creation of a depositors' guaranty fund, was proposed today in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Steagall, Democrat, of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

The measure is designed to strengthen permanently the national banking structure, he said.

A resolution calling on the attorney general to report to the Senate why the Department of Justice hasn't prosecuted railroad holding companies for violation of the anti-trust laws, was favorably reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Tax on War Profiteers Proposed to Congress

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(INS.)—A constitutional amendment empowering Congress to fix prices in time of war and also levy a tax of 95 per cent of war profits was recommended in the War Policy Commission's report submitted to Congress today by President Hoover.

War profits would be attacked by levying a special tax of 95 per cent on the excess incomes of corporations and individuals during war. This tax would apply to the increased amount of incomes which were in excess of the regular income for the three years preceding the war.

AREA CRIPPLED BY BLIZZARD

ardous for autoists. The State Highway Department today continued clearing the roads in four counties where 42 plows were started yesterday. Hills and intersections are being cindered.

In Pittsburgh the highways bureau had men clearing the crossings. Numerous skidding accidents were reported, while several motorists were marooned by snow drifts in rural districts.

Telephone service in remote districts was hampered by yesterday's blizzard. The Pittsburgh office of the Associated Press last night relayed its news to outlying papers by radio when the wire service failed.

TRAINS DELAYED

The Pennsylvania Railroad service between Harrisburg and Altoona was reported blocked by the storm, while trains rolled into the Pennsylvania Station here from one to eight hours late.

Relief agencies already under a heavy burden reported increased demands because of the sudden flareback of winter. Coal, food and clothing were sent to many homes as appeals went out for contributions of these necessities.

Dr. James S. Hammers, superintendent of Mayview, announced that because of the cold wave, the influenza quarantine would be continued for another week.

WOMEN RESCUED

Two Mt. Lebanon women, Mrs. A. P. Martin, of 82 Mayfair avenue, with her young son, and Mrs. W. P. Dunbar, of Hazel drive, were rescued yesterday from a storm at Lido Beach, Fla., that swept the entire peninsula, leaving in its wake one dead, four injured and much property damage. They were taken by motor launch from an island where they had been marooned.

At Bedford, Pa., Clarence Points, 79, was found dead in a snowbank. It is believed he was en route to the home of his brother, Attorney George Points, when overcome by cold.

En route to Philadelphia to visit a son who is ill, Mr. and Mrs. William McGeary and their daughter, Margaret, 21, of Vandergrift, injured in an auto collision, are in Mercy Hospital. Drivers of the two cars were blinded by the snow at Williamsburg.

Caught in a blinding snowstorm with a dead motor, Pilot Hal George maneuvered his monoplane and its mail cargo to a safe landing on a hilltop near Martin's Ferry, O., according to word received last night at Bettis Field. The landing was necessitated by a broken gas line from the fuel tank.

A woman was injured slightly when her automobile skidded on the icy street and snapped a water plug in East Tarentum last night.

Mrs. Bessie Stein, 64, of 508 Fifth avenue, New Kensington, suffered several fractured ribs and lacerations of the face, head and body when an automobile in which she was a passenger skidded over an embankment on the Leechburg road. She was taken to the Citizens General Hospital.

Passengers on a crowded Monroe bus were forced to leave the vehicle when its engine caught fire in Beechwood boulevard near the Greenfield Bridge.

Highway officials appealed to WCAE, the Sun-Telegraph radio station, to broadcast warnings that many state roads were dangerous and that autoists could proceed only with caution.

Miss Marlow, of Williamsburg, Va., Baptist Mission school teacher in Chapei, Shanghai, severely beaten by Japanese troops while she inspected the ruins of the school building. Mrs. J. A. Burns, 1207 Kelton avenue, Dormont, once was a student of Miss Marlow's in a Kentucky school course.

SENATORS RAP LAW FAILURE

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's action in enlisting the aid of racketeers to help restore his kidnaped baby was described today as a "sad travesty upon law enforcement in America" by Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee.

Explaining they did not blame Lindbergh for taking any steps which might lead to the return of his child, the same sentiment was expressed generally by other Senators, who considered it ironical that the underworld had to be enlisted to help perform the duties of officers of the law.

Senator Steiwer (Rep.), of Oregon, incensed at the Lindbergh kidnaping, has introduced a bill making transportation of kidnaped persons from one state to another punishable by life imprisonment.

2 GUNMEN ROB RESTAURANT

Two masked gunmen held up the cashier in Thompson's Fourth avenue restaurant, near Smithfield street, early today, and escaped with $40 from the cash drawer.

M. J. Kane, of 5216 Harriet street, the cashier, submitted to the holdup when the bandits' guns were leveled at him.

John Lenk, of 1224 Buena Vista street, a waiter, and John Julius, of 1526 Penn avenue, a bus boy, were not molested. It was the second time the place had been held up in six weeks.

There were no patrons in the eating place.

BILLION DOLLAR TAX MEASURE GIVEN HOUSE

Passage of Increased Levies Within Week Predicted; 1931 Incomes Not Affected

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The "budget balancing" tax bill of the House Ways and Means Committee was formally introduced in the House today.

Despite the customary opposition usually faced by all revenue measures, its passage in a week was forecast.

The measure was placed before the House with overwhelming non-partisan committee support and the approval of Secretary of the Treasury Mills.

Designed to overcome a budget deficit of $1,241,000,000 in 1933 by raising $1,096,000,000 in taxes and closing of loopholes and economy, the bill is said to be the largest peace-time tax bill ever placed before Congress.

BILL AFFECTS ALL

The new bill hits everybody through higher income taxes, estate tax, gift tax, sales tax and excises. It brings more than 3,000,000 new income taxpayers into the list of contributors to the Treasury through lowering of exemptions. The measure, however, applies to 1932 incomes and does not affect tax returns due this year on 1931 incomes.

The prohibition question was introduced when the committee recommended taxing of malt and wort—home brew ingredients—and grape concentrates, but refused to tax "real beer."

Because many leading manufacturers appeared before the committee and urged the sales tax, the committee believes it can meet all opposition.

TAX INCREASES

The increased taxes include:

Lowering of exemption for single men from $1,500 to $1,000, and for married men from $2,500 to $2,500, with the credit of $500 for each dependent unchanged.

Normal income tax rates are 2 per cent on first $4,000 instead of 1½; 4 per cent on next $4,000 instead of 3; 6 per cent on remainder instead of 5 per cent.

In addition, surtax rates begin at $10,000. They are 1 per cent on incomes from $10,000 to $12,000, increasing 1 per cent for each $2,000 additional income until an income of $100,000 is reached. After that the surtax is 40 per cent. The tax on a million dollar income without deductions is $460,000.

CORPORATION INCREASE

Corporations pay 13 per cent income tax instead of 12 per cent. With corporations having incomes under $10,000 annually getting a $2,000 exemption. Life insurance companies pay the same rate.

Non-resident alien tax raised five to six per cent.

Estate tax is doubled, reaching maximum of 40 per cent.

Under new gift tax the first $100,000 is exempted. On a gift of $150,000 the tax would be $7,50. The rate is graduated to a point where a gift of more than $10,000,000 would bring $3,000,000 to the treasury. The highest rate being 30 per cent.

The manufacturers excise tax with most foods exempted, would be paid by the last manufacturer of a completed article at 2½ per cent of the sales price. Manufacturers with sales under $20,000 are exempted.

IMPORTS INCLUDED

Electricity and illuminating gas would be treated as manufactured articles. A 2½ per cent would be assessed against imports, if similar to manufactured articles bearing the tax.

Miscellaneous taxes include 4 cents a gallon on lubricating oils, 35 cents a gallon on malt syrup, 5 cents a gallon on wort and 35 per cent on grade concentrate.

Telephone, telegraph and radio messages costing 30 to 49 cents, tax of 5 cents; if 50 cents or more, tax of 10 cents.

All amusement admissions of 25 cents or more tax is 1 per cent for each 10 cents on fraction thereof.

Joint Probe Asked Of Bus, Truck Lines

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(INS.)—A joint federal and state investigation of motor trucks and bus transportation was urged today by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads. Testifying before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, which is considering the Couzens bill empowering the Interstate Commerce Commission to regulate motor truck and bus transportation.

Bad Money Charges Hold 3 for Court

Ruben Thornberry, arrested Thursday by secret service operatives and police, today was held for Federal Court trial, charged with counterfeiting. Operatives testified they had found spurious 50-cent coins and molds. Raymond Miller, also arrested, will be given a hearing later.

John Russell, of 322 Penn avenue, and Henry Appel, 1205 Sandusky street, were held for Federal Court charged with passing a counterfeit $5 note on a taxicab driver March 2.

2 Jailed for Pose As U. S. Dry Agents

Glenn Allum, who was indicted in Fayette County in the Constable Jack Donohue murder case, but never was tried, and Frank Barachanowicz, has been held for court by the United States commissioner on a charge of falsely representing themselves to be government prohibition agents.

In default of $5,000 bond each, they were committed to jail.

Move to Extradite 5 Holdup Suspects

Assistant District Attorney Earl Jackson, with two county detectives and seven witnesses were to leave today for Columbus, O., where they will confer with Gov. George White in connection with extradition proceedings against five men being held in Ohio for the holdup and robbery of the Metro Club, Murray avenue. The men have announced they will fight extradition. The suspects are listed as Fred Bowser, Lee Roy Marino, Donald Michael and "John Doe."

Aged Man and Boy Missing From Homes

Police today were seeking an aged man and a boy who disappeared from their homes, according to reports received at the Missing Persons Bureau.

The man was Daniel O'Brien, 70, of 69 Almeda street, who wandered away from his home Saturday evening. He weighs 140 pounds and was wearing dark clothing and glasses. The boy was Irwin Cullen, 16, of 6½ Prospect avenue, who disappeared February 29.

Don't Scold Young Girl Who Has a Crush on Teacher

Remember when you were just 16, and had a perfectly marvelous crush on that interesting, sad looking man who used to hang out around the City Hotel?

And how you used to make up errands so you could go past the City Hotel a dozen times a day—just to catch a glimpse of his haunting black eyes and iron gray hair and suffering mouth?

Even when you found out that he was just a horse doctor and wasn't suffering at all but had five kids and played the piccolo—why, even then your crush put up an awful struggle before it died.

Makes you laugh now when you think of it, doesn't it? But it wasn't a laughing matter then—and it isn't a laughing matter now to Caroline or to her worried mamma.

For 16-year-old Carrie has a crush on teacher, and her mamma can't imagine why, and is throwing duck fits as a consequence.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I hope you can help me. I know you are a mother yourself, and I have an idea you've seen plenty of silly little girls like my Caroline and can tell me what to do about her.

"You see she is just past 15 and she is in her second year at Hi. With the new term she went to a different teacher for her English work, and she has conceived a terrible crush on him.

SHOCKED BY ACTIONS

"She doesn't say much about him now. I tried to laugh her out of it when I first saw what was happening, and I guess that was the wrong track to take for she just moons around now and half the time doesn't hear a word you say to her.

"The whole thing seems to me ridiculous and unnatural. This teacher doesn't pay a speck of attention to her outside of her class work, but that doesn't seem to matter so far as discouraging her from her crush is concerned.

"What can I do? I've tried to talk to her, but it's just like talking to a feather pillow for all the attention she pays. She just looks absent-minded and says practically nothing. I am at my wits' ends. Please help me.

MRS. K. SIMMONDS."

Yes, I know it does seem both ridiculous and unnatural to you, my dear, and you are really worried and exasperated. But don't be. As a matter of fact, little Caroline's crush is perfectly natural and normal, a disastrous affair if it is handled wisely.

We're discovered odd things about the human mind and heart in these recent years. One of them is the fact that almost every little girl makes an ideal of her father, as every little boy makes an idol of his mother.

GIRLS' IDEAL

Your Caroline's crush is just one of those natural, inevitable experiences. The time has come for her to fall in love with somebody. Wild horses couldn't prevent that, sister. So all the pent-up and wondering love forces in her reach out toward this man who has the pattern she most respects and trusts—the pattern of her father.

The very maturity which seems to make such an affair absurd enthralls her. He seems so much more sure of himself, so much more of a staff to lean on, than the noisy, blundering boys of her own age.

But if you're wise—if you play your own cards right—you can lead her away from that crush and on to the firm ground of comradeship and final happiness with her own generation.

How? Not by scolding her or calling her silly, or by letting her see you're worried about her, but by having the other youngsters over for a little dance, or a picnic, or a party now and then. By seeing that she has plenty of fun and not too much time to moon around.

If you do that, and sit tight, she'll gradually come down to earth where she sees things as they really are—and that first dream love affair will pass out of her mind.

Marriages Without Love Not Likely to Last Long, Fay King Advises

NOW THE GIRLS ALL ENVY ME!
SHE MARRIED HIM BECAUSE ALL THE OTHER GIRLS WERE CRAZY ABOUT HIM
HE HASN'T HELPED ME AT ALL!
SHE MARRIED BECAUSE SHE THOUGHT HE WOULD HELP HER CAREER
SHE MARRIED FOR SPITE!
WHEN HE READS OF MY MARRIAGE HE'LL BE SURPRISED!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

If you are really in love your marriage stands a good chance of success.

But if you marry for other reasons it will be difficult and not likely to last.

Some marry for money, for position and for fame.

A man may be very attractive to every girl, but the one he prefers, and she marries him to be envied by the others.

But the girl who can make a success of a loveless marriage must care beyond everything for the interests which prompted that marriage—vanity, ambition, or spite.

Madge Wonders If Veritzen Will Approve of Change in Play

It was fully an hour before my childish curious wonder as to the pact between Lillian and Dickey permitted me to go to sleep. And, when Lillian's hand upon my shoulder wakened me the next morning, my first thought was a query so insistent that I had to catch myself back from voicing it.

Not for worlds would I have let Lillian know the curiosity which was consuming me. I tightened my lips upon the determination to guard them vigilantly in the time that remained before my departure with Dickey for our week-end oceanside sojourn lest any hint of my mental questioning should reach Lillian.

"Ten o'clock, old dear," Lillian said cheerily. "You will just about have time to have a petit dejeuner and dress before Phil gets here. I won't let Kate make it as strong as the real French article. Then you won't spoil the farewell lunch she's planning for you. Anybody'd think you were going for a round-the-world flight to see Katie's culinary preparations.

"That's Katie's way of expressing her emotions," I said. "She always translates affection into pastries and salads."

"She's made a double translation today," Lillian grinned. "'Don't dress yet!' sharply, as I went to the closet for my gown. 'Katie's bringing your coffee and rolls right away. You'll just have time for your shower. You can dress afterwards.'"

Katie was in the room arranging my tray when I returned from my bath. Her face was drawn down to the doleful mien which she considers the proper expression for any leave-taking, but I saw that she was bubbling over inside with some unusual excitement and that her dolorous countenance was only a mask.

"You go vay from your Katie," she said, with the corners of her mouth drawn downward.

"Yes, Katie, I'm going right after luncheon," I said.

"You not go too qveeck," she said anxiously. "I feex nice loonch for you. I vant you take time eet it."

"I wouldn't hurry over one of your special lunches, Katie," I told her, smiling, "for anything in the world."

"I know dat, eef you by yourself," Katie retorted, "but Meester Graham, he something else again. Ven he starts somevere he vant go eef Prince of Wales' cook had feexed loonch."

"But, Katie," Lillian interposed smiling indulgently at my little maid, "the cook of the Prince of Wales wouldn't be in it with you in Mr. Graham's estimation, and I can promise you that both Mr. and Mrs. Graham will do full justice to your lunch, so run along now."

"And sell my papers, I suppose," giggled Katie, whose knowledge of American slang is only equaled by her propensity to use it upon all occasions.

"Exactly," Lillian said, but after the door closed upon Katie. "And now, girl, I don't want to hurry you, but old Phil will be here at 11, you know, and the Lord only knows how long he'll stay mulling over that third-act revision. And you want to be dressed ready for your trip before he comes."

She wanted to hurry me away. She wished no chance of delay in my departure after luncheon. In my determination to voice no questioning concerning her pact with Dicky, I said the first thing which came into my mind.

"I'll hurry," I promised, "but what do you suppose is the matter with Katie; she's bubbling over inside over something."

"She probably saw a new movie thriller last night and is revising her 'de-tec-a-tif' course," Lillian said easily—a bit too easily. Suddenly I knew that whatever secret pact Lillian and Dicky had, Katie was aware of it. But I let no hint of my belief escape me. Instead I laughed, as all of us always do, at Katie's belief that she is a born "de-tec-a-tuff" and that the absurd correspondence detective course in which she once invested several of her hard-earned dollars has made her a super-sleuth.

"Look out she doesn't get a notion into her head that there is a kidnaping plot against me while I'm gone," I cautioned.

"As your mother-in-law says, 'I wouldn't put it past her'," she said, "but don't waste any more time on Katie. Drink your coffee and eat your croissants."

She patently wished to get Katie out of my mind and, with the conviction deepening upon me that something quite important to me was afoot, I obediently discussed my petit dejeuner and afterward dressed for my trip as Lillian had told me to do. It was with the gratifying knowledge that down to my last hairpin I, with my luggage, was ready for my week-end trip with Dicky, that I went downstairs to the library when Philip Veritzen was announced. In my hands I carried the mechanically perfect manuscript which Dickey had had typed for me and as I walked into the room where Mr. Veritzen was waiting for me, I forgot all my childish curiosity concerning the secret which Dicky and Lillian were sharing, in my tense query as to what the great producer could say to my third act as I had revised it.

Better for Baby

If your baby is a bottle baby it will be wise to spend the few cents extra on the quart and buy certified milk.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Automobile Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a friend goes motoring with my husband and me, is it proper for me to sit in front with my husband, or should I sit in the back seat with my friend?

CONSTANT READER.

It is terrible form for you to sit with your husband and allow your friend to sit alone in the back seat. By all means sit with her in the back seat, and then she won't "feel left out in the cold."

Eating Peas

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When peas are served with the liquid left with them, is it proper to eat them with a spoon or fork?

2. Is it proper to eat your salad with your dinner or to wait until you have finished and then eat your salad? L. B.

1. If you wish to eat only the peas, you use your fork. If you wish to eat the liquid too, you must, of course, use the spoon.

2. If the salad is served as part of the main course we usually eat it with the course as we would another vegetable. But of course if we prefer to eat it afterward there isn't any reason why we shouldn't do so.

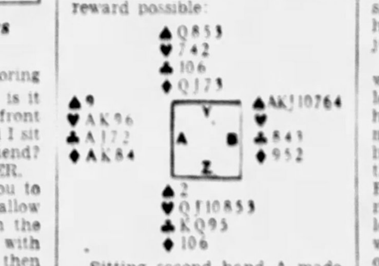
Contract Bridge :-:

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

How Many Tricks Can B Win at Spades?

The following hand required both good bidding and excellent strategy to obtain the maximum reward possible:



Sitting second hand A made an opening bid of 1-Heart. Opponents had nothing to say, but B jumped the declaration into 4-Spades. His partner reasoned that his opening bid had caused him to be trusted for three or four assisting tricks, and that B counted on winning six or seven tricks in his own hand. As A held much greater values than his opening bid had shown, he bid 6-Spades. That ended the bidding.

The opening lead was Z's K of clubs. While it appeared almost hopeless to fulfill his contract, B played dummy's ace. He led back A's lone spade, letting it run, as he was obliged to take a finesse with five trumps missing, including the Q. To gain entry to his own hand, a low heart was led from dummy, and trumped by B. When the K of spades was led, Z showed out of trumps, and the declarer found that he had to play a double grand coup, necessitating twice shortening his trumps, so that he and Y would each have left just two spades.

A lead of the 9 of diamonds was won by dummy's K. Upon leads of A's Ace and K of hearts, B discarded both his remaining clubs. Dummy's 9 of hearts was led and trumped by the declarer. For his ninth trick B led his 5 of diamonds, winning the trick in dummy, and leading back the 7 of clubs, which he trumped. At the end of his tenth trick B found the following holdings about the table:

To win all except one trick, thus fulfilling his small slam contract, B led his 2 of diamonds, Y had to win the trick, and lead his Q-8 of spades up to B's A-J.

At first sight one might think that Y could have discarded in some way to avoid the end play that B made, but careful study of the holdings and possible opportunities for discarding will show that B's play was foolproof. If Y had attempted any different method of play, so would B.

In case Y trumped, instead of discarding upon the heart or the club leads, B could have readily picked up Y's trumps, just as he did in the end.

HE KNOWS WHAT "QUICK" MEANS

It takes a man who must give "quick service" himself to appreciate what "quick service" means. Mr. Stanley Dvorak, 5132 S. Sawyer Ave., Chicago, reports: "Every time a radio belonging to a customer gets out of order I have to jump in the service-car and give him 'quick service.' I'm out in all kinds of weather, so I get a cough-and-cold once in a while. I had a pretty bad one some time ago. I tried lots of things to stop it, but it hung on to me and kept me awake at night. I saw a car-card advertising REM, and got a bottle. It did what it said it would do. My wife uses it, too." REM gives the "quick service" that is the big thing in keeping coughs from developing into something worse.

BODY OF SOUSA LIES IN STATE IN CAPITAL

Storm Greets Arrival of 'March King's' Casket in Washington; Plan Honors

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP.)—A snow-hushed capital sheltered today the body of John Philip Sousa, the great "march king," whose career as a bandmaster over 40 years led him to the pinnacle of international acclaim.

Sousa died in Reading, Pa., early Sunday morning. It was just a few hours after the 77-year-old conductor had directed a rehearsal of a local band. He attended a banquet given in his honor, retired to his room, and was found shortly after by his secretary, stricken by a heart attack which snuffed out his life.

BODY TAKEN HOME

They brought his body to Washington—home. He was born here, and here his father obtained him a place in the Marine Band when 13 years old. He will be buried Thursday at Congressional Cemetery with such honors and ceremonies as his family will accept.

They were gathering today, Mrs. Sousa and two daughters coming from New York, the conductor's son, John Philip, Jr., on his way from California.

Reading gave him a martial send-off, with an honor guard composed of American Legionnaires. Four Army officers and his son-in-law, Hamilton Abert, escorted his flower-covered casket to the Capital.

But his body's entry in Washington was without ceremony. In a driving snowstorm the casket was taken from the station to the hearse which waited in the deserted street. Navy and Marine Corps were ready to pay the tribute of an escort, but without instructions from the family could not do so.

ALWAYS 'BANDMASTER'

The stirring compositions which have made the name of Sousa a household word everywhere, brought him not only the enthusiastic admiration of the millions who heard his band in its annual tours, but the friendship of great men. To the end, however, he remained the bandmaster, composer of military marches and operas.

Most popular of his compositions, Sousa always believed, was "The Stars and Stripes Forever." His last was the "George Washington Bicentennial March." His final appearance here was to conduct the massed Army, Navy and Marine Corps bands in playing that composition on the Capitol plaza on Washington's birthday, just two weeks ago.

FIND 2 WOMEN SLAIN, BURNED

BALSAM LAKE, Wis., March 7.—(AP.)—Concerted efforts to identify two women slain and burned beyond recognition in an automobile near here were being made by the authorities today in the hope this would help establish a motive and possibly some leads to the assassins.

Motorists who were attracted by the blazing car and put out the flames with snow, found the bodies yesterday. One of the women had been shot through the head and the other's skull crushed by a heavy instrument. Their faces had been disfigured with acid and the clothes of both saturated with gasoline.

Investigators expressed belief the double killing was the work of gangsters and premeditated as the license plates had been removed and the spare tire tossed inside the car to be consumed by the fire. A piece of unmarked hotel stationery led to the discovery the victims left a St. Paul hotel Saturday after registering as Margaret and Margie Perry, of Chicago, both probably assumed names.

The bodies were brought to a local undertaking parlor last night and a dentist inspected the dental work while a pathologist searched for other marks of identification to aid the investigators.

Two Men Arrested With Gold Bullion

ROSWELL, N. M., March 7.—(AP.)—With two bars of gold bullion estimated to be worth $350 each in their car, two men giving the names of R. J. Isom, 27, Gates City, Va., and J. P. Norris, 41, of Mobile, Fla., were arrested here late Saturday night.

Officers are investigating ownership of the car. They said the two men could give no clear account of their actions previous to coming here.

Fear for Banker's Yacht, Carrying 7

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—(Universal.)—Apprehension was felt today for the safety of the yacht Four Winds, which sailed from New York January 23 for San Francisco with a crew of seven aboard.

The yacht is owned by Stanley G. Harris, New York investment banker. The Four Winds is radio equipped and last reported its position February 24, off Corinto, Central America.

Unlined shoes!—here's the newest thing in 1932, contributing to comfort, chic, and a quick, clipping gait. For while shoes have always come out of boxes, now the "boxing" comes out of shoes, giving them a new suppleness and abandon without detracting from their smart, trim lines.

And how successfully it has been done, is demonstrated in the three new, spring Pedemodes pictured: The monk step-in pump of brown or black calfskin, and the oxford of brown or black pigskin, each at one moderate price—

'BABY BONDS' DRIVE HERE UNDERWAY

Bankers Make Estimates Of Requirements; Will Start Deliveries Soon

Bankers were making estimates of their requirements for United States Treasury Baby Bonds as the drive to distribute the new form of security, giving absolute safety to investors of moderate means, got under way this morning.

Throughout the Pittsburgh district arrangements have been made to take application for the bonds which will be dated and ready for distribution on March 15. After that time most banks will have a supply of the bonds on hand for immediate delivery.

Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and regional director of the 10-day bond sale campaign, has estimated that $1,000,000 will be brought into active circulation in this district through the sale of the bonds. The proceeds of the sale will be deposited in local banks by the United States treasury, thus adding to the funds available for Pittsburgh business.

The bonds will mature in one year or are payable on 60 days' notice from the holders. They will bear interest at 2 per cent and will be in denominations of $50, $100 and $500.

HOOVER OPENS IDLE CASH WAR

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(AP.)—The great, war-like offensive against hoarding swung into action today, signaled by President Hoover himself in a stirring appeal for a demonstration of the people's faith in their country.

At the "zero hour" late last night, the chief executive faced a battery of microphones in the White House cabinet room to tell his nation-wide radio audience that it was time for every citizen to step out against the harmful economic forces that have hampered recovery, with releasing hoarded money the big objective. He said:

"The American people have at this moment one of the greatest opportunities in their history to show an assured confidence and an active faith in their own destiny which is the destiny of the United States—and by that faith we shall win this battle."

Mr. Hoover gave his full emphasis to impressing on his hearers the grave effect of keeping money out of normal channels. He said:

"One hoarded dollar deprives some wage-earner of at least some part of his pay. Multiply this simple example by nearly a billion and a half dollars of idle money now hidden in the country and you may get somewhere near a true picture of the enemy of our national security that we vaguely call 'hoarding.' It strangles our daily life, increased unemployment and sorely afflicts our farmers."

A NEVER Again

"NEVER AGAIN!" and as the car drew up at its home curb, Mrs. Barr agreed with her husband's verdict.

"No, from now on we'll telephone first," she replied.

How merrily they had started that automobile jaunt! The day had been brilliant with sunshine. A surprise visit to distant friends was an alluring prospect.

But the house was empty—their friends away. Through the long afternoon the Barrs had waited for their return fortified by a meagre roadstand lunch. They waited in vain.

"If we had only telephoned!" Thought of this simple precaution was small comfort during the homeward drive. But the next time, the Barrs agreed, they'd know better.

Salm Wins $8,000 On $8 at Cannes

CANNES, France, March 7.—(Universal)—Count Ludovico Salm, former husband of Millicent Rogers, yesterday pyramided $8 to $8,000, setting a new Casino record for winnings on so small an investment.

The Count dined at the Casino with Dorothy Benjamin Caruso. He later ran $8 to $240 playing at chemin de fer. Going to the baccarat room, Count Salm challenged Nicolas Zagraphos, head of a syndicate of Greek gamblers. The Count played his $240 carefully, ending the game with $8,000 to his credit.

PAIR IN PLANE FIGHT EAGLES

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., March 7.—(Universal)—A thrilling battle three miles in the air took place here when Mrs. Griffith Lloyd, well-known aviatrix, and Stuart Wandell, veteran pilot, while flying near Pikes Peak were attacked by a pair of huge eagles.

The great birds swooped screaming at the ship, striking with beaks and wings at the fliers until the plane was forced to fly out of the mountains.

According to Wandell, the fliers saw a band of Rocky Mountain sheep with a number of eagles worrying them. Mrs. Lloyd, at the controls, dived at the eagles to scare them away, upon which two charged the ship. Wandell said Mrs. Lloyd gave the ship full gun to get altitude and when about 15,000 feet up one eagle dive before she could recover knocked her into the cockpit control.

The ship went into a dangerous

Demands Welfare Department Act As Cupid

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 7.—A foreigner, appearing Saturday at the office of County Welfare Officer Mansford B. Hogue, when asked what he wanted replied:

"I want a wife."

Questioning developed that the romantic applicant thought it was the function of the Welfare Department to furnish wives as well as food, clothing, etc. He had a farm but no money and being unmarried and 50 years of age, now desired a wife. He said:

"They save women at Poor Farm, don't they?"

He insisted on going there to look them over. He was finally pursuaded that the county was not in the matrimonial business.

PERUVIAN CHIEF SHOT IN CHURCH

LIMA, March 7.—(AP.)—President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, of Peru, was shot and slightly wounded yesterday at a church in the summer resort of Miraflores, near here, by an assailant who shot two other persons, including a bystander, before he was wounded and captured.

The assailant was identified as Jose Melgar Marquez, a member of the Aprista (opposition) political party.

Col. Antonio Rodriguez, chief of the presidential staff, was wounded seriously when he stepped between the President and his attacker. The injured bystander was a woman member of the congregation.

President Sanchez Cerro was shot in the chest. The President drew his pistol to fire back, but failed to use it before his aide, Maj. Luis Solari, shot and captured the assailant.

LISTENING IN

With the Radio Editor

CONTINUING THE campaign against "idle money," launched last night by President Hoover on the networks, four Pittsburgh civic leaders deliver radio appeals tonight in behalf of the government's new issue of "baby bonds."

Mr. Robertson

Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, speaks on KQV at 6:15; William B. Rodgers on WJAS at 6:40; F. J. Chesterman, vice president of the Bell Telephone Company, on WCAE at 7:30, and A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of Westinghouse, on KDKA at 7:30. All four speakers, well versed in industrial and financial affairs, promise graphic descriptions of how trade channels become stagnated through withdrawal of money from circulation. Mr. Dunn is heading the government's drive in the nine Western Pennsylvania counties.

Here's good news for radio fans: "The Street Singer" is coming here in person. Arthur Tracy, known to millions of listeners through his broadcasts over the Columbia network, is booked for five days, starting Saturday, at Loew's Penn Theater, in a program of favorite songs that have made him famous. While in Pittsburgh, he will conduct his network broadcasts from WJAS.

Miss Bori

Lanny Ross's program switches from NBC to CBS and George Frame Brown's "Real Folks" is leaving CBS for NBC, with a new sponsor.

Ben Bernie, who first galloped "The King's Horses" across the network, introduces a new number dug up for him by his British scouts. It is "The Queen Was In the Parlor," and he threatens to sing it in his unforgiveable baritone on WJAS tomorrow night.

The La Follette brothers, Senator Bob and Gov. Phil, speak on the same program next Monday . . . David Patterson, KQV's "Park Bench Philosopher," says he doesn't like fan mail . . . Jessica Dragonette can tell fortunes with cards . . . but she denies it's because she was born in India, land of mystics . . . An important Canadian network has been organized and may affiliate with NBC . . . The Four Eton boys all claim Scotch ancestry . . . and that, according to Joe Block, their accompanist, accounts for their close harmony.

Lew White's "dual-organ," heard over the NBC network, is really two organs which achieve tonal effects and orchestral combinations never possible on a single instrument. As White plays at one console, an intricate system of wiring causes the tablets and stops of the other organ to rise and fall, thus producing the full orchestral tones of two organs under one-man control.

A new series of Jewish programs, to be known as "Songs of Israel," starts on KQV next Monday night.

Studio Static

After suffering for several days from a severe cold, Rosaline Greene, NBC dramatic actress, left her bed to broadcast. Near the studio, a taxi, whizzing around a corner, nearly ran her down. She reached the microphone still shaking from fright and then found that her first number on the program was an Indian death chant.

MOTHER KNEW BEST

Oscar gets efficient cough treatment

"Too much football—I guess that was the reason! Oscar came home with a full grown cough and cold. Right away to bed with him, I said, and right away I gave him a teaspoonful of Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. It eased the cough, soothed his throat, and he fell asleep. In the morning he woke up as full of pep as ever—cough and cold had gone." T. F. Ryan, 1366 E. 92nd St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Frances Dee, Adrienne Ames To Be Girl Friends Of Soldier Boys

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by the Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 7.

Today's news out of Hollywood brings a story that Frances Dee and Adrienne Ames will play the feminine leads in Paramount's "Come On, Marines."

Consider that, and you can get quite a slant on this business of making movies.

Frances Dee was an extra. She worked for a few dollars a day until her beauty and individuality attracted attention. Given a contract, she made good and now is one of the important younger players on the Paramount lot.

Frances Dee

Adrienne Ames was a rich girl, the wife of a New York broker. On her way back from Honolulu she stopped in Hollywood to have her picture taken. The photographer recognized a screen type and got her interested in making a test. She registered well, so the long arm of Hollywood reached out and plucked her from a penthouse.

These two girls now work side by side and are judged by the single criterion of glamor and ability. Rich and poor, high and low, they're all tumbled together in Hollywood.

HERE'S GOSSIP

The 50 guests invited to Sonya Levien's party tonight can't conceal their curiosity. Joan Bennett and Gene Markey, who will be married soon, are two of the guests of honor. The other two are Greta Nissen and Weldon Heyburn. Is it to be an announcement . . . For the last two days, everybody I have met in Hollywood has asked me "What's the latest news of the Lindbergh baby?"

Joan Bennett

All the stars are deeply concerned. They can sympathize, better, perhaps, than some because nearly all of them have received threats at one time or another. Ann Harding's home is still under guard following an attempt to kidnap her little girl . . . Talked to Carole Lombard today. She's a frank girl, no airs. Put her down as one of the regulars. Same for husband Bill Powell . . . Saw Marlene Dietrich and Joseph Von Sternberg about to step into a long black motor outside the Paramount studio. Marlene wore a green jacket. She and Joe tell me there is no supporting cast chosen for her new picture . . . Benny Markson has been signed by R. K. O. to write the screen treatment for his play, "Is My Face Red?" . . . Jimmy Durante wants to take up polo to see if he is important enough for the studio to make him stop . . . Wilson Mizner won 14 hats at the Brown Derby, betting on the original opening date of "The Florodora Girl." He observes he'll have to have more horns than a moose to wear them all.

ABOUT A SWITCH

Warners' decision not to star Bill Powell in "The Dark Horse" doesn't mean this story is to be abandoned. At least, not from what I hear. The new plan is to put Warren William in the part and to start production, as originally intended, about the middle of this month.

Followers of this column will remember "The Dark Horse" is a political story about a presidential campaign. Joseph Jackson wrote it and Warners sent another writer to Washington to get the lowdown.

Air Romance

Mary Astor and Richard Dix in one of those closeup moments, which precedes his stunting in the air in "The Lost Squadron," coming Friday to the Stanley.

Mr. Montgomery Stars In Sheridan Film

"Lovers Courageous" will conclude a three-day engagement in the Sheridan Square tomorrow night. The film, recently praised on its downtown showing, is based on a play, written especially for the screen by English playwright Frederick Lonsdale. Robert Montgomery is starred and the cast includes Madge Evans, Roland Young, Beryl Mercer, Alan Mowbray and Halliwell Hobbes.

Edna Mae Oliver, Lady Of Jury in Harris

Edna Mae Oliver has the leading role in "Ladies of the Jury," film based on the stage play which opened Saturday in the Harris. This is the comedy drama that the late Mrs. Fiske starred in on the stage. Roscoe Ates, stuttering comic, also is prominent in the cast. Another feature in the Harris is the Buck Jones film, "One-Man Law."

20,000 to Attend Conventions Here

More than 20,000 delegates are expected to visit Pittsburgh during the 22 new conventions obtained through the convention division of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, Mark Eben, manager, has announced.

The present convention list includes the American Association for the Advancement of Science and Associated Societies, which will bring 10,000 visitors to the city.

Plays and Players

—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS—

A Russian revue that has played many European countries and has toured to the Pacific Coast will be presented in Syria Mosque Thursday evening as the seventh event of the May Beegle concert series. This attraction is Yushnys "The Blue Bird," a combination of music and vaudeville in colorful settings and costumes. Among the 17 acts will be a scene from the Tschaikowsky opera, "Pique Dame."

* * *

Under the auspices of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters Cornelia Otis Skinner will be seen in the Alvin Tuesday, March 15, in her characterization of "The Wives of Henry III." When she appeared in New York earlier in the season her success was so marked that the engagement had to be extended.

* * *

George White's "Scandals," instead of Queenie Smith in "The Little Racketeer," will be the Easter week attraction in the Alvin, opening March 28, and it will be the first touring production to have a week's stand this month. The complete New York production is promised, including Rudy Vallee. "The Little Racketeer" engagement now will have to follow Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," April 4. "The Grand Hotel" and Lew Leslie's "Rhapsody in Black."

* * *

When "The Devil Passes," comedy by Benn W. Levy, takes to the road after the close of its Broadway run, March 26, Boston and Chicago are the only towns listed to see it for a complete week. Other large cities, including Pittsburgh, have been allowed only three days in the tentative bookings. There also will be some one-night stands, according to Arch Selwyn, the producer.

Marie Dressler Wins Educators' Praise

Marie Dressler was paid a unique honor by the citizens of Palo Alto, seat of Stanford University. She was presented with a scroll, commemorating her work in "Emma" and other Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, and which was signed by the Mayor.

Arnold Dedication Plans Being Made

Plans for the dedication of Arnold preparatory school's new gymnasium, Tuesday evening were being completed today. Made possible through the gift of $100,000 by R. E. Withers, president of the board of trustees, and vice president of the Aluminum Company of America, the new building will be dedicated by Charles W. Wilder, headmaster of the school. Others who will speak are G. Cooke Kimball, H. V. Baxter and Mr. Withers.

Australians See Eclipse of Sun

MELBOURNE, March 7.—(AP.)—Thousands of Australians turned out today to watch an annular eclipse of the sun which began at 5:35 p. m. The greatest extent of the eclipse was visible in the state of Victoria.

Melvyn Douglas Cast Opposite Garbo

Melvyn Douglas has been borrowed from Samuel Goldwyn by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to play the leading male role opposite Garbo in her new starring picture, "As You Desire Me." Lewis Stone, who has just completed a part in "The Wet Parade," and Erich Von Stroheim are the only other members of the cast so far selected. George Fitzmaurice, who directed "Mata Hari," will direct this picture version of Luigi Pirandello's stage play. Douglas has appeared in both stage and screen versions of "Tonight or Never" and also played in "The Command to Love" and "Jealousy" on the stage.

Circus Star

Marion Davies stars in the circus as well as on the screen in "Polly of the Circus," her newest picture, which opens Friday in the Penn.

May Robson Will Play In Crawford Film

Advice

I may be wrong, but yet at times I feel
That we will patch this twisted quarrel of ours;
That some night I will have the heart to steal
To your gay lair with fresh and fragrant flowers.
If that night comes I only hope that you
Have lost the vision of a wayward lad—
That happiness and faith will spring anew
As you recall the golden days we had.

For, after all, what use is it for me
To stamp defiance at your certain charms?
When all the magic play of memory
Brings back your warmth within my eager arms;

Please, then, when you hear footsteps on your stair
Smile at the past and run to meet me there!

The Retort Lovely

The editorialists are always twitting Mayor Walker because James is going places—to California, Europe or what have you? The pokes in the papers (as anyone will tell you who knows Walker) merely go in one eye and out into the ether.

At one time, an anti-Walker reporter called at the Mayor's apartment. He brought along some of his newspaper's suggestions for alterations on the City Hall, which it argued needed fixing.

"This," said the reporter, pointing to the blueprints, "is how City Hall will look when it is altered."

"Really?" really'd Jimmy as he lifted his right eyebrow, "how does it look now?"

Merciless Truth

And Elinson wants to know why people think that coffee keeps you awake? Because last night Izzy gave a guy in the street a nickel to get a cup of java, and a little later he found him lying in the gutter.

Of All Questions!

Mike Donovan, the ass't treasurer at the Apollo Theater, was shaving himself the other a. m., and while he complained about his razor being dull, his squaw chimed in with:

"Feyvensakes! Y'don't mean to tell me that your beard is tougher than my nails?"

What! Another?

Added to our list of caustic cracks from cruel critics—from "Frederick":

And—

Howard Snyder changes the subject with:

"And may all your children become wrestlers and make faces at you!"

A Form of Criticism?

Among other tee-hees was the faux pas made by the announcer of a big meat packing firm.

He invited the public to visit the meat packing plant's shipping room in Chicago, and said:

"It is a wonderful sight to see the long line of hams, untouched by human hands, going along to be wrapped. Just like a dress parade at West Point, rows and rows of hams."

Such Conceit!

"Hmmm-hmmm," the doctor hmmm-hmmm'd, "you have acute appendicitis!"

"Never mind," snapped the young lady, "I came to be examined—not admired!"

What! And Starve?

"I also swear off all imitations of Walter Winchell, Dorothy Parker, Ring Lardner and Ernest Hemingway," Rex Deane, in Judge.

Not yet! I have two children to support!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sleeping Sickness Most Dangerous to Children

"Sleeping sickness" is a term that has a kind of mysterious sound. As a matter of fact, the disease itself is something of a mystery. While it is undoubtedly a germ disease, no scientist has been able to discover the special organism that conveys it. It is thought that some virus migrates to the brain and sets up the changes which produce the disease.

Dr. Copeland

Although a person of any age may be attacked by sleeping sickness, the evil results in affected children are especially severe. In many cases unhappy changes in disposition, unruly conduct, as well as hysterical symptoms, have been traced to causes unrecognized in the beginning.

The early symptoms of the disease in children are indefinite. Often the little patient makes no complaint, but seems dull and listless. He is inclined to sleep, and when aroused takes no interest in his surroundings, quickly relapsing into sleep.

Another type of case is ushered in by convulsions, nausea and delirium, with inability to sleep. Some children attacked by this type of the disease are unable to sleep during the early part of the night, but at about 4 o'clock in the morning fall into heavy slumber which may last far into the afternoon.

The duration of the acute disease may be from a few days to a few weeks. The after-results may persist for months or years. In certain rare cases the child may seem normal for months, but later develop nervous symptoms of more or less severity.

Changes in the habits of sleep are most characteristic of the ailment. There may be pronounced wakefulness, or marked sleepiness, and sometimes the desire to sleep overcomes the patient at the most inopportune times.

Some children, as I have suggested, show a change in disposition, becoming cruel or developing thieving or lying tendencies. Although the mentality seems but little affected, in some cases hysteria, emotional instability and lack of self-control make the child a problem case.

The symptoms of brain disorder in other cases take the form of muscular disturbances, such as paralysis of the eyelids or the facial muscles, or there may be various movements like St. Vitus' dance which torment the unfortunate child. Difficulty in walking may partially incapacitate him.

Certain institutions for nervous cases have undertaken, with considerable success, the care and education of children suffering from the after effects of sleeping sickness. It is certain that in view of their unstable nervous systems, and poor adjustment to their surroundings, a special type of training is necessary to assist them to become useful members of society.

INCOME TAX RETURNS

Suggestions to Aid in Making Reports to Government

A professional man may deduct all necessary expenses incurred in the pursuit of his profession. These include the cost of supplies used in his practice, expenses paid in the operation and repairs of an automobile used in making professional calls, office rent, cost of light, water, fuel, and telephone in his office, and the hire of office assistants.

Many physicians use their residences both as their offices and their homes. In such instance, the physician may deduct as a business expense the rental value of the rooms occupied for office purposes if he actually pays rent, and also the cost of light and heat furnished these rooms. Also, he may deduct a portion of the wages paid domestic servants whose time is partly occupied in caring for these rooms. Membership dues in professional societies are deductible. Physicians and dentists who keep in their waiting rooms current magazines and newspapers for the benefit of their patients may deduct this item as a business expense. The cost of professional journals for the taxpayer's own use also is a deductible item.

The cost of technical books is not a deduction item, being a capital expenditure, but a proportionate amount for each year's depreciation of the books may be deducted. Insurance premiums or other professional equipment and liability insurance may be deducted. Automobile liability insurance may be deducted only when the automobile is used wholly in pursuit of the taxpayer's profession, and the cost of the entire upkeep may legitimately be claimed as a professional expense.

2 Mass Meetings to Spur Fight on Utility Rates

$5,500,000 RELIEF BOND ISSUE MEETS PROTEST

DISTRICT HEADS TO ADDRESS VOTERS

Armstrong County Forces To Organize Friday; Dormont Plans Rally

Further advancing the Western Pennsylvania fight against excessive public utility rates, two mass meetings have been scheduled this week.

Under auspices of the Twelfth Legislative District Independent Organization Dormont voters will hear speakers from the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association at a mass meeting tomorrow night in Swartz Hall. William H. Meyers, chairman of the organization and a member of the Forty-fifth Senatorial District Executive Committee of the fair rate group, will preside.

Speakers will include President A. B. Davidson, of Tarentum, and O. W. Heselbarth, chairman, and Harry Wohlwend, of the executive committee.

Armstrong County forces will be organized Friday night at a mass meeting in the courthouse, Kittanning, under auspices of the Forty-first Senatorial District executive committee. Chairman C. M. McLaughlin, of Freeport, will preside. Association speakers scheduled include President Davidson, Burgess S. S. Baldridge, Apollo, J. Steele Butler, Brookville, and Mayor Joseph Heineman, Butler.

Candidates Advocate Fair Rate Legislation

Edward A. Gearing, of the Eighth Ward, recorder of the Registration Commission, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination as member of the General Assembly from the Fourth Legislative District. He said:

"If elected I will exert every ounce of energy to bring about direct relief for the unemployed. I am opposed to the present desultory legislation for public utilities and advocate the passage of such laws and the creation of state body which will give the consumer a fair and honest rate.

"I am heartily in favor of strengthening the present election laws and advocate permanent legislation. I am also in favor of old age pensions."

Fred C. Gangloff, of Coraopolis, assemblyman from the Twelfth Legislative District, announced his candidacy to succeed himself, declaring:

"No utility in this state should be permitted to continue charging the same rates that were formerly charged and I am in favor of taking immedite steps to raise against every utility company in the state the question of excessiveness of its rates and to prosecute such questions as far as may be necessary to assure the customers of the benefit of the present low prices for materials, low values of property and low cost of labor by which the utilities now are benefited."

Cold Kills Veteran Due to Get Bonus

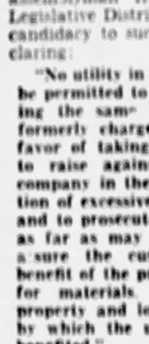
WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 7.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Don't tell me we got people that can read and they haven't read Pearl Buck's great book on China, "Good Earth."



Will Rogers

It's not only the greatest book about a people ever written, but the best book of our generation. Even in China the Europeans and the Chinese say it's absolutely true, and there are few books written about people where they say they are good themselves. I had an engagement to fly up and meet her, but it stormed that day, and I missed the treat. So go get this and read it. It will keep you out of some devilment and teach you all about China and you will thank me.

Yours, WILL.

THE BURNING BED FROM WHICH DEMICKI PAWET, 57, WAS CARRIED TO THE HOSPITAL

Owner Charles Gerej examining the attic room in which a sleeper was seriously burned in a gas explosion that blew a hole in the roof, shattered nearby windows. Gas was blamed.

M'KEES ROCKS BLAST HURTS 3

One person was burned seriously, two others were bruised when an explosion rocked a two and one-half-story brick house at 322 Shingiss street, McKees Rocks, blew a hole in the roof and shattered windows of nearby houses early today.

The blast, blamed on gas, occurred in the attic room of Demicki Pawet, 57, who was carried from his burning bed by Marcin Jozefcki, 40, who had the next room.

Asleep on the second floor, Stanley Zorowski, 38, was injured when thrown from bed, and his 9-year-old son, Alfonso, was bruised by falling plaster. Zorowski and his wife took Alfonso and their 19-month-old son, Karl, to safety. On the first floor, Mrs. Sophie Noval, 35, a widow, and her three children, were uninjured.

Pawet was rushed to Ohio Valley Hospital.

Fire which followed the explosion was confined to the attic. Owner Charles Gerej estimated the damage at $4,000.

WOOD STREET ASS'N. MEETS

Plans to preserve the historical traditions and improve Wood street, one of Pittsburgh's oldest thoroughfares, were advanced at a meeting today of the board of directors of the Wood Street Association of Pittsburgh. Arthur C. Kaufmann, president, presided.

Other officers of the association, which has applied for a charter, are Francis A. Keating, vice president; Charles W. Baird, treasurer, and W. B. Hamilton, secretary. Members of the board, in addition to the officers are: Lee Mason, J. R. Grabowsky, P. C. Hodill, A. C. Couch, J. L. Roberts, George H. Alexander, J. K. Woodwell and Raymond Price. Property owners and merchants comprise its membership.

Among the many aims of the association are plans to preserve the beauty of the streets by the installation of attractive lighting fixtures and the removal of unsightly signs and to maintain its traditional business standards.

Wood street, opened in 1784, became Pittsburgh's principal thoroughfare, it was pointed out today, because it led to the steamboat landings, from which goods were transported by rivers and canals to all parts of the country. Many of its present business establishments date back many generations.

ANTI-ROOSEVELT DELEGATES NAMED

Democratic Battle Lines Drawn With Slate Chosen Loyal to Smith Program

Battle lines of the Democratic factions in Allegheny County were drawn today when a complete slate of uninstructed candidates for delegates to the national convention at Chicago was announced. Delegate and alternate candidates from every congressional district in the county are entered to oppose a similar slate prepared by champions of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, with delegates pledged to his candidacy.

In announcing the uninstructed slate, Attorney Charles Alvin Jones, active in Democratic party affairs, described the Independent Democratic organization as a group "which is conducting the fight locally for uninstructed delegates loyal to Smith leadership."

DELEGATES NAMED

Thirtieth District—For delegates, John B. Meyers, Indiana Township, and Alfred V. Pontello, Sharpsburg; alternates, Mrs. Mary A. Criste, Twenty-seventh Ward, and Mrs. Agatha D. Tiernan, Bellevue.

Thirty-first District—For delegates, G. Malcolm McDonald, Forest Hills, and Carl D. Smith, Swissvale; alternates, Mrs. Anna M. Mooney, Wilkinsburg, and Dr. William H. Waugaman, Turtle Creek.

ANDERSON IN RACE

"Independent" Republicans of the Fifth Legislative District will meet tonight in Westinghouse High School to indorse a candidate for the General Assembly. Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Smith is scheduled to preside.

Committees from the Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth wards met a few days ago and discussed candidates and it is expected a recommendation from those groups will be submitted tonight in line with previous agreements.

CHURCHILL IN CITY

WINSTON S. CHURCHILL MISS DIANA CHURCHILL

Mr. Churchill, celebrated Briton, and his daughter as they arrived in Pittsburgh today. He will lecture at Carnegie Music Hall.

CHURCHILL HERE MOURNS BRIAND

Winston S. Churchill, British statesman and author, was shocked upon his arrival here today for a lecture engagement to learn of the death of his personal friend, Aristide Briand, former Premier of France.

"I only can express the deepest personal and public regret in the death of the great leader."

Mr. Churchill, who has two more lectures this week in the United States before sailing for England, was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Diana Churchill. He speaks tonight on "The World—Facing Disaster," in the Carnegie Music Hall.

Recovery from the economic crisis depends upon a change in monetary conditions, Mr. Churchill declared, in urging an international conference of world powers. He would seek an international agreement for the stabilization of silver. Citing the reason, he explained:

"There is no reason why man should be limited because of the supply of gold. It is but a convenience, and there is no reason why its standard cannot be altered. The price of gold is not made by the holder, but by those who scramble for it."

The unemployment crisis could be remedied, he contends, by compulsorary job insurance.

He said:

"This measure was introduced for certain trades in Great Britain by me in 1908 and since then governmental labor exchanges have been developed throughout the country to distribute labor as well as handle the insurance and relief funds."

SURVEY GIVEN AD CLUB

Results of the recent R. L. Polk market study of the Pittsburgh area will be revealed to members of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club at the regular luncheon meeting in the William Penn Hotel tomorrow, by George M. Rowland, Jr., through the courtesy of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Mr. Rowland will show what constitutes the Pittsburgh market; its potentialities for the retail merchant. The information to be disseminated results from questions asked of 309,000 housewives in the Pittsburgh area last year.

Disclosed will be such general information as the average rent, popular price lines in eight general merchandise classifications, occupational breakdowns, bank accounts, etc.

3 ORDINANCES PRESENTED COUNCIL

New Tax Burden Feared By Real Estate Board; Propose Vote in April

Three ordinances calling for $5,500,000 for relief were to be presented to Council this afternoon and were to be met by a protest from the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board.

Councilman W. Y. English was to present two ordinances asking for bond issues of $3,000,000 and $2,000,000 to be voted on at the April primary. The larger issue is proposed to furnish relief to the needy and the other would finance city improvements to furnish material and labor in the emergency employment campaign.

The $500,000 direct appropriation is for immediate relief of the unemployed.

FEAR TAX BURDEN

R. T. Mackintosh, president of the board, says:

"The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board recognizes the necessity of giving aid to the unemployed, but does not believe Pittsburgh and Allegheny County taxpayers can stand any increase in property taxes. The new bonds would necessitate an increase in taxes beginning next year."

J. Roland Brady, executive secretary of the board, declared:

"If taxes are raised we may find ourselves in the position of the man who killed the goose that laid the golden eggs. This bond issue or $500,000 appropriation should not be rushed through Council. The matter should be discussed sanely at a public hearing."

COMMISSIONERS MEET

County Commissioners are to meet with the emergency leaders tomorrow at noon. It is understood a $10,000,000 bond issue to give employment will be asked from the county. Members of the special committee say they have no definite projects in mind in the bond issue, and that the nature of the work would be determined later.

Opponents of the city and county bond issues assert the interest charges alone on proposed $15,000,000 loan would result in a substantial increase in taxes on real estate. Interest at 4½ per cent, which financiers say is the lowest at which municipal money can be borrowed now—even if bonds can be sold—would require additional $675,000 in city and county.

Besides this, taxes also will be needed to finance bonds for the Wabash tunnel and bridge if they are acquired by the county.

TAX PAYMENTS LAG

In the county building today it was said even under the existing tax rate collections this year probably will amount to no more than 75 per cent. Any raise in the tax rate would automatically increase the number of delinquencies, for real estate owners already protesting they are carrying too heavy a burden.

The contention is made that Pittsburgh is really operating on a "short-change" budget now. Without any new bonds or the appropriation of another $500,000 for relief work, it is declared, it is in position from expectant revenues on the existing rate of tax to operate only until November without borrowing money against next year's taxes for the normal operation of municipal agencies, such as police, fire and health.

'Crank' Letter Writers Stir Anger of 'Bugs'

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We have laws in the country for all of our ills. Unfortunately, we also have laws for most of our blessings.

We need one more law and we require it faster than Floyd Gibbons can say hello folks.

It should be aimed dead center at the quarter-wits who write crank letters.

Crank letters give the police wrong steers, obstruct justice and tear the living hearts of people in trouble.

The writers of these horrible epistles can be easily traced. Run them down and put them in a third-class postoffice with first-class padded walls.

We have learned one thing from the tragedy that is stirring the world. Let the postmasters read all the letters before they are mailed. That would enable them to grab the cranks and put about 50 years of federal postage on them.

AIRPLANE TRIP TO DETROIT AWAITS PITTSBURGH BOY

BEGIN CONTEST TO DETERMINE WINNER

Zoom! We're hopping off for Detroit!

It isn't so very long ago that transportation exploitation read "all the way by rail" or "all the way by water." Now it is no novelty to read "all the way by air."

The marvelous development of airplane transportation for passengers, express and mail will go down in history as one of the wonders of all time—not only in the matter of safety, speed and practicability of this method of transportation, but also in the number of routes that have been established and the number of miles flown every day.

AIRCRAFT SHOW

Coincident with all of this great development there will be a National Aircraft Show in Detroit beginning Saturday, April 2. Every boy in America will want to go to this show and The Sun-Telegraph has made arrangements to send one Pittsburgh boy by airplane. He will not only go to Detroit in deluxe style by passenger plane but will return to Pittsburgh the same way. He will be given a special airplane tour over Detroit, a trip through Detroit which will include a trip through the Ford plant.

Yesterday The Sun-Telegraph launched a contest to select the boy for this thrilling trip—all expenses paid. The trip is sponsored by the National Aircraft Show and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America for the purpose of making the youth of today more air-minded—to induce the boy to take a greater interest in aeronautics.

CONTEST RULES

Boys from 15 to 20 years of age are eligible to enter this contest. Although the contest started yesterday it is not too late to enter as the first two questions in the contest are repeated today. There will be 24 questions in the test—two each day until March 24. On Friday, March 25, the contest will end with a 100-word letter from the contestants telling in their own way the advantages of air-mail and air-travel.

The boy who wins the Detroit trip will follow the following schedule:

GOING

Pennsylvania Airlines No. 1—Leave Pittsburgh, Tuesday, April 5, 11:30 a. m., arrive Cleveland, Tuesday, April 5, 12:50 p. m.

Century Air Lines No. 3—Leave Cleveland, Tuesday, April 5, 1:20 p. m., arrive Detroit, Tuesday, 5, 2:45 p. m.

RETURNING

Century Air Lines No. 4—Leave Detroit, Friday, April 8, 2:15 p. m., arrive Cleveland, Friday, April 8, 3:35 p. m.

Pennsylvania Airlines No. 6—Leave Cleveland, Friday, April 8, 4:30 p. m., arrive Pittsburgh, Friday, April 8, 5:45 p. m.

Every boy of eligible age in Pittsburgh will want to take this wonderful airplane trip. The boy who sends in the most nearly correct set of answers to the 24 questions and submits the best 100-word letter will be the winner. Should there be ties the contestants so tied will be given an equal award. There will be a board of three judges to examine the papers.

Contact! Let's go! Fly to Detroit! Fly back to Pittsburgh!

Free Airplane Flight!

Pittsburgh to Detroit & Return

Here are the first four questions in the Sun-Telegraph-National Aircraft Show-Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce Contest:

1. How much more does it cost to send the average letter by air mail than by ordinary mail?
2. Can ordinary stamps be used for an air mail letter?
3. If ordinary stamps can be used for an air mail letter, how would you mark the envelope to insure delivery by air?
4. How much time is saved in sending a letter by air from your home to Detroit?

Answer to Question No. 1

Answer to Question No. 2

Answer to Question No. 3

Answer to Question No. 4

Use separate sheets of paper if you wish. Do not submit any answers until the close of the contest.

2 BABIES SAVED FROM FIRE

Firemen were called twice to extinguish a blaze from which two families in the residence of Orenton Dague, 220 Sacramento street, West End, were forced to flee early today.

Dague's daughter, Mrs. Hilda Shall, carried her young daughter from her bedroom to the first floor and escaped through the kitchen window when flames barred the door.

Dague, who was awakened by smoke, carried Mrs. Shall's other daughter, Ruth, to safety. Mrs. Marie Dague also escaped injury. Damage was estimated at $500. The cause of the fire was not learned.

An hour later firemen were recalled to the residence when the smoldering wood flared again.

STUDENTS USE SPARE TIME ON ESSAYS

Majority of Schools Already in Contest; Still Time to Enter Lists

Many students and youths under 21 out of school over the week-end, have decided to enter the Sun-Telegraph essay contest on George Washington's Farewell Address.

Already a majority of the schools in the tri-state district have signified their intention of competing. A number of school essays have already been written and some have been submitted although the entrants have until April 4 to send in their essays.

The classification and prizes:

In each of the classes, 2, 3, 4 and 5, there will be awarded 100 diplomas for honorable mention for the 100 best essays produced in each class after the first, second and third prizes have been awarded.

RESCUED FROM FLORIDA GALE'S WRATH

MRS. A. P. MARTIN AND HER YOUNG SON, JOHN A. . . . . WERE SAVED FROM ISLAND BEACH

The Martins, 82 Mayfair drive, Mt. Lebanon, among 10 persons, many of them Pittsburghers, rescued from Lido Beach (near Sarasota, west coast) as a gale lashed the Florida coast. The island was washed by water, but no one was swept into the high seas, Mrs. Martin reported.

BOUND, GAGGED ROBBED OF $200

Police today were seeking two men who escaped last night after tying George Gorman, manager of the Rocolene Refining Company station at 2532 Brownsville road, to a chair and taking $200 from the cash register.

The men entered the station while Gorman was alone. He was tied with a clothes line and a gag forced into his mouth. Gorman managed to roll off the chair, but remained bound until he was freed by his brother, William, of 38 Merritt street, and Thomas Gaughan and Thomas Braun who called to drive him home.

While waiting for a street car at Murtland and Frankstown avenue last night, V. S. Bliss, of 7016 Bennett street, was held up by two armed men and robbed of $5.25, according to a report to East End police.

Charles Bods, of 7960 Tioga street, Wilkinsburg, reported to Wilkinsburg police that two armed men entered his confectionery and rifled the cash register of $10.

Two men who forced their way into the home of John Spirk, 517 Fifty-sixth street, escaped after threatening him with a revolver and taking $40 from his pocket. Spirk said that when he tried to telephone police he found that the wires had been cut.

NEW HEARING ON TUNNEL PLEDGED

Downtown Group Presses County to Purchase Bridge as Traffic Outlet

Planning a vigorous fight for the immediate purchase of the Wabash bridge and tunnel project, representatives of the Downtown Business group, yesterday said the Allegheny County Commissioners were planning another hearing, probably within the coming week, to determine the physical valuation of the properties.

The hearing is the result of a four-hour meeting last week at which the immediate purchase of the bridge and tunnel was urged by Walter Rosenbaum, T. Clifton Jenkins, W. P. Fraser and others.

The meeting was attended by scores of representatives of South Hills and West End civic and municipal groups.

Mr. Fraser warned the Commissioners:

"If something isn't done and done quickly to make the lower section of the town accessible to the purchasing power that lies in the territories south of the hills, there will inevitably be further lowering of property valuations and consequent falling off of tax revenues."

35 IN FINALS FOR SWEETEST VOICE TEST

Preliminary Auditions End With 2,000 Entrants; Verdicts Meet Approval

It's all over but the finals. Thirty-five girls with exceptional voices have been selected to compete for the distinction of being "the girl with the sweetest voice" and the girl who gets this honor will be given an opportunity in the field of radio with the Sun-Telegraph and WCAE.

Arrangements for the final auditions are being completed, details to be announced in Wednesday's Sun-Telegraph.

Owing to the unusual care that was taken in the selection of judges, the auditions were conducted without a sign of dissatisfaction and this is unusual considering the fact that these judges passed on the voices of approximately 2,000 candidates. Had it not been for the prevailing epidemic of colds and influenza, from 500 to 1,000 more candidates would have been heard.

BYRD TO SEEK POLE AIR ROUTE

CINCINNATI, O., March 7.—(AP.)—Read Admiral Richard E. Byrd is going back to the South Pole again, to determine the commercial possibilities of the polar regions he claimed for the United States in the two-year exploration which ended last year.

Just when he will go, or how long he will stay, he would not—or could not say.

But already plans are being prepared for the new expedition. They will proceed on a definite basis when at last the work of annotating the scientific observations of the last trip has been completed. That work is expected to be measured in volumes rather than pages when it finally is finished.

Christian Science Leader Talks Here

That Christian healing, as practiced by Jesus Christ and his disciples, can be accomplished now, was the assertion of Prof. Hermann S. Hering, of Boston, in a lecture yesterday in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Bellevue.

Prof. Hering said the world is evidently in need of healing—relief from sin, sickness, sorrow and suffering—and in need of a better means of healing than is now in general use.

DEFT COLOR COMBINATIONS FEATURE SPRING ENSEMBLES

Sketched in Paris

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 7. — The color theme is a predominating feature of many of the new spring ensembles. A dark coat with a light touch is worn with a light frock that boasts a dark note to match the coat, and there is the ensemble. Of course it is not quite as simple as all that, but this color scheme is certainly extremely popular here. You will like the new ensembles, for they certainly are different from almost anything shown for many a season, most attractive and wearable, and refreshingly new. Fine materials and furs are used. The frocks often boast a very complicated cut and yet the outcome is an apparently simple costume, without any trace of the opulent or lavish. As yet there have been few radical changes and at the same time even a novice can spot the new models a mile off. The slim silhouette prevails mostly, since it is the most youthful, simple and becoming. Woolens continue to weave themselves into the very fabric of the mode, with several new textures marked for favor. Sleeves still bear the burden of interest and importance, and designers are finding further new twists for our arms.

* * *

THE MAGGY ROUFF ensemble sketched for this page should serve to give our readers a very good idea of what is what in the spring ensemble field as done by a leading house. The three-quarter coat is of rough surfaced, navy blue woolen with double sleeves, trimmed with white fox. The oddly shaped collar has a single wide lapel at the side. The dress is of white silk and wool homespun in a loose uneven texture. The bodice is slightly fitted at the sides and front by means of horizontal tucks. A set-in, cowl-shaped yoke edges the neckline and is of the material with drawn threads in an open net pattern. The same work forms the lower half of the bishop sleeve.

* * *

THE ONE-SIDED treatment is a feature of this house. Loose, rounded-edged pieces slope up at one side reaching to the center back, where there is a seam. Below the double row of these pieces is a side-pleated panel. The color scheme of the coat is reversed by using touches of the navy fabric of the coat to border the scarf of the frock, which is of self-fabric.

DOT: Every day or so—that keeps it dainty

JEAN: But doesn't it stretch and get flabby?

*The Lux Way to preserve ELASTICITY

How flattering a new foundation garment is! Even if it's the merest wisp of a girdle its elasticity makes it fit smoothly and yet so lightly!

But when this precious elasticity is gone, the most expensive garment is flabby, ill-fitting—actually disfiguring! It's because gentle Lux preserves elasticity that it keeps your foundations as perfect in fit as when they were new.

Wash this 2-minute way: Use lukewarm water—Lux dissolves instantly in it. Squeeze suds through fabric, rinse twice.

Lux every day or so, for foundations absorb perspiration. Perspiration acids discolor and rot fabrics.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades color. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is safe in Lux.

EIGHT MOORES IN MAJORS THIS YEAR

THE RETURN OF Eddie Moore, former Pirate, Brave and Dodger, to the big baseball show this year as extra infielder and outfielder for the Giants, draws attention to the fact that the Moores will again have the distinction of being the ruling family in the major leagues. The Smiths and the Joneses may continue to hold their time-honored sway in other fields, but in the big diamond circuits their representation is slight. In fact, each of those justly celebrated families has only one member on the spring rosters—Pitcher Bob Smith, of the Cubs, and Pitcher Sam Jones, of the White Sox.

Eddie Moore

The Moores have it by the wide margin of two to one over their nearest rivals. Two others belonging to the same tribe have come in with Eddie this year, which gives the two big leagues a total of eight players bearing that name. No other family has more than four representatives. Five clubs in the National League and two in the American have Moores on their membership rolls, and one of the outfits in the senior body, the Giants, must be credited with a pair of them.

IN ADDITION TO Eddie, drafted from Oakland, the Giants have Joe Moore, an outfielder, from Bridgeport. The Braves have Randy, whom Bill McKechnie is endeavoring to convert from an outfielder into a catcher, and the Cubs have John, an outfielder from their Los Angeles farm.

The Dodgers have Austin, a pitcher, and the Reds have Eugene, an outfielder, the player in each case having been carried over from last year. Both of the Moores in the American League also are holdovers from 1931, and both are also pitchers. They are Wiley, one-time Yankee, with the Red Sox, and Jim, with the White Sox.

THERE IS A four-cornered tie for second place among the families strongly represented in the active playing ranks. Those making the closest approach to the Moores are the Taylors, the Browns, the Johnsons and the Youngs, each with four members. Three of the four Taylors are on one club, the Cubs.

Four other clans are able to muster three votes each, these being the Millers, the Collinses (not counting Eddie, who is no longer a player), the Harrises and the Whites. The names borne by two players are Waner, Ferrell, Sewell, Wilson, Walker, Spencer, Roettger, Grimes, Adams, Allen, Rice, Lucas, Davis, Bell, Herman, Burns, Knothe, Boyle, Coleman, Cunningham, Campbell, English, and Lee.

ACCORDING TO THE observations of Daniel Daniel, in Los Angeles with the Giants, the youngsters out there are passing up baseball for football, and baseball men on the coast are concerned over the situation. At one playground 500 boys, ranging in age from 8 to 11, were found tossing footballs provided by the Board of Education. At Santa Monica Beach, too, squads of youngsters were throwing pigskins around. Among the visitors was Jim Thorpe. "Much as I love football, I hate to see the boys snub baseball," said the once great Indian star. "You can't see anything but footballs around here. And the kids who aren't out trying to emulate Nevers and Pincher! are on the golf courses, caddying." "Not only that, but the youngsters who do go in for baseball are softening up," put in George Stovall, former major leaguer who is now baseball coach at U. C. L. A. "They sprain a thumb and out they go. The game isn't what it used to be."*

Bill Swift

THOUGH PIRATE PRACTICE has not progressed far enough to provide a definite line on the merits of any of the recruits, signs are pointing to Bill Swift, obtained from Kansas City in the American Association, as likely to prove the best of the new pitchers.

Casey Stengel, who managed Toledo in the same circuit, told George Gibson when the deal was made that Pittsburgh had landed a live one, and camp reports indicate that Swift is bearing out Stengel's judgment. Older Pirates are almost convinced that Bill's blazing fast ball is going to be as effective in the upper set as it was in the minors.

GLANCING THROUGH SOME old basketball records and pictures that he has preserved, Johnny Freund resurrects some interesting dope of the old days. One feat that stood out was performed in the 1912-13 season, after the Central League had disbanded.

The McKeesport team had moved to Reading won the Eastern League championship, and then met Troy for the pro title. The series went five games, and in the final contest the former McKeesport foul shooter, Andy Sears, threw 22 straight from the foul line to beat Troy, 31 to 29.

THE RECORD OF the first season of the West Penn League, organized by Freund to take the place of the defunct Central loop, shows that the South Side team won the championship with such well-known players as Anderegg, Troetschel, Beggs Snyder, Sorce, Stanton, Barum and Verner. Then there was the Zion Council Five, with Joe Goldman as captain and second only to Anderegg in the league in total points scored. Next a grouping of the first Coffey Club squad, showing Moy Marks, Chick Marks, Abe Levy, Jack Frishman, Lefty Abrams and Hymie Levenson.*

THERE FOLLOWS A group picture of the Mt. Washington Lyceum Juniors, title claimants in their class, including Leo Mackey, now a leading official and a successful minor league baseball manager, but then a mere stripling. In a photograph of the St. Gabriel's Church Five, of New York, appears Johnny Beckman, later the famous ace of the Celtics, wearing his first big team uniform.

Another feature is the record of Chief Muller, scoring 445 points in 48 games for the Troy team and leading the New York State League in that respect. Muller will be recalled as a star on the South Side team in the Central League, and one of the most popular players in that famous old circuit.

AS A NEW way in which to comprehend the blinding speed at which Sir Malcolm Campbell was traveling recently when he set a new world automobile record of almost 254 miles an hour Paul Lowry offers this illustration:

The average businessman would have a tough time running 100 yards in 15 seconds. Campbell could start a mile away in his Bluebird, with the runner starting only 100 yards from the finish, and Campbell would hit the line first.

Frank Lockhart

IN SPITE OF his amazing records, Sir Malcolm is not being ranked first among history's racing drivers by all the members of that fraternity. According to Babe Stapp, still racing on the coast after nine seasons in the game, the greatest driver that ever sat behind an automobile wheel was the late Frank Lockhart because of his versatility, pointing out that Frank was equally at home on flat track, banked ovals, board or brick. Murphy had not done much dirt driving when he was killed at Syracuse in 1924. Lockhart had run the gamut when he was killed at Daytona Beach in 1928. Lockhart was one of only four men besides Sir Malcolm ever to exceed 200 miles an hour. The others were Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, Ray Keech and Lee Bible.*

The New Kensington High School basketball team, champion of Section I, begins its drive for its second W. P. I. A. L. basketball championship tonight when it engages Sewickley Township High School, champion of Section XII, in a second round battle of the elimination series in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

New Kensington, one of the favorites in the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations as a result of winning 19 out of 22 games played during the season recently concluded, held the league championship two years ago. It was displaced as W. P. I. A. L. last season by Scott High School, of North Braddock, which went on to win the state title.

KEN HIGH PRIMED

Fans attending tonight's contest will see a typical Glockcoached machine in action. The valley quintets turned out by the New Kensington mentor have been noted for their fighting qualities and this year's team is no exception. Ken High never quits trying in championship encounters and as a result many games that were believed lost have been turned into victories.

In meeting Sewickley Township, the Glockmen tackle a quintet that compiled a fine record in Section XII. Bellevernon was the only team to take the measure of Sewickley Township in 12 league games.

The winner of tonight's game earns the right to tackle East Pike Run, champion of Section XVI and vanquisher of Canonsburg, Section XV champion, in the quarter finals next Friday night. The records of the two teams follow:

SERIES TO BE RESUMED

The post-season series for the City League championship will be resumed tomorrow afternoon in the Pitt Stadium pavilion when Allegheny and Schenley clash in the second game. Allegheny won the opener and can clinch the series by winning tomorrow's game. If Schenley evens the series, the deciding battle will be played on the same floor Friday afternoon.

The City League junior swimming championships will be decided in three pools this afternoon. Section I will compete in the Baxter pool, Section II in the Fifth Avenue High pool and Section III in the Connelley Trade School.

Plans for the organization of a third tennis group will be completed at a meeting to be held tonight in the Shady Side Academy athletic office. Two divisions already have been formed.

FINAL IS REACHED

Sam Alpern and Dave Olbum reached the Y. M. H. A. senior handball final yesterday when Alpern defeated Sam Wolf, 21-9, 21-4, and Olbum eliminated Phil Lapidus, 19-21, 21-5, 21-7.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF SATURDAY: A FISH THAT PRAYED—During my stay in Vienna last year my attention was called to a most bizarre gravestone in the Jewish cemetery situated at IX, Seegasse, in the Austrian capital. It is surmounted by the likeness of a fish, and marks the final resting place of a carp which, before expiring in the frying pan, is said to have startled a Viennese hausfrau by exclaiming, "Listen (O) Israel," the two Hebrew words of an ante-mortem prayer. I secured a photograph of the curious monument on the spot and from it drew this cartoon.

TOMORROW: THE GREATEST SAILING RACE IN HISTORY.

DUKE ALUMNI GET GANZY

It has been definitely decided that Ganzy Benedict, ace of last year's Duquesne varsity basketball squad and rated as one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at the famous Bluff institution, will be on hand for the Varsity-Alumni game in the Duke gym tomorrow night.

Ganzy now is in Oil City coaching at one of the schools there. He has had a most successful season, and until Saturday, he did not know if he could get away for the game here. But it is all settled, Ganzy has promised to be in the game.

There is every reason to believe the Alumni will have a squad of 20 or more out for the annual game, and the foremost passers of all time at the Dukes will be on hand, including the famous combination of Rosenberg, DeMaria, Schrading, Serbin, O'Donovan and Monohan. Then there will be Vernon, Benedict and Stephens, of last year's squad, and Moon Klinzing, Coy Harrison, Cingolani, Ancient O'Connor, Parry and Lubic and several of the other more famous Duke teams of the past.

Tax on Charity Bouts Proposed

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(INS.)—Patrons of charity boxing and wrestling matches will have to pay the 10 per cent admission tax imposed in the new revenue bill introduced in the House today.

University and college sports also would bear the admission fee if the proceeds are retained by the institution, but charity games would be exempt. The West Point and Annapolis academies are similarly affected.

In drafting the bill, the Ways and Means Committee rejected exemptions on these sports which were provided in the 1926 laws.

REGATTA PLANNED HERE

The OLYMPIC GAMES

By Lawson Robertson

Lawson Robertson—Head Coach American Olympic Team

CHAPTER V.

The first revival of the Olympic Games took place in Athens, Greece, in 1896. Track and field events made up the greater part of the program. And in these the United States excelled and thus was victorious.

It is rather an odd fact that although all the sports that made up an Olympic schedule originated in Greece and Rome, these countries had very few experts in any event in 1896. When the games were abolished centuries before, the youngsters ceased to enthuse about Olympic sports and this was true with all of their successors through the centuries up to 1896.

The United States was the one nation in the world which was enthusiastic with reference to the strength, health and character building of games. As a result, all sports held a conspicuous part in college life, and so, when the games were revived in 1896, we had some stars of first magnitude to send against the entries of Europe.

EVENTS STANDARDIZED

The program of 1896 was not so elaborate as in the later years. Many contests which were arranged for the meets of 1896 and 1900 since have been abandoned, as, for instance, the 60-meter run, the 4,000-meter steeplechase, the 200-meter hurdles, the standing high jump, the standing broad jump and the standing hop-step-jump.

It was found there wasn't much enthusiasm over the standing jumps and that races at odd distances did not attract many entries. They then were dropped, new events substituted, and, through the last few Olympic Games, we have operated a standardized Olympic schedule.

The representation of countries as well as athletes was very small at the first of the modern Olympic festivals. But this has increased through the years and now there are 68 members of the International Olympic Committee, representing 48 countries, with each major nation having three committeemen.

REVIVAL GROWS

Thus the idea sponsored first in 1894 by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, and which was ridiculed, has developed in less than 40 years to the major sport event of the civilized world.

LOTT WINS NET TOURNAMENT

HAVANA, March 7.—(AP.)—George Lott, of Chicago, defeated Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., in the final round of singles of the international tennis tournament here yesterday. The scores were 6-4, 3-6, 13-11, 6-2.

Allison and J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., won the doubles title, defeating Lott and his Canadian partner, Marcel Rainville, in straight sets, 6-4, 8-6, 6-2.

UMPS CONSOLIDATE

At a final consolidation meeting of the Pittsburgh and West Penn Umpires Associations, held yesterday afternoon, the organizations finally agreed on all points and the ratification took place. Thus the West Penn Umpires' Association has passed on and only one organization is to work the baseball games on the sandlots this season.

W. VA. QUINTS ARE PAIRED

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., March 7.—One of the best fields of West Virginia sectional tournament champions will begin their classic here Friday morning in the fight for the 1932 scholastic crown, now worn by Huntington High School, last year's title winner.

Friday afternoon — Parkersburg vs. Princeton, West Union vs. White Sulphur Springs, Wheeling vs. Woodrow Wilson (Beckley), Elkins vs. Martinsburg.

Sixteen sectional foul-shooting champions also will be here to try for the state foul-shooting title won last year by Isaac Maxwell, of Lost Creek. This year's sectional entries include:

Boyer, Dunbar; Cook, Mullens; Adkins, Logan; Spears, Crede-Kenova; Gladwell, Hainelle; Propps, Fayetteville; West, Jaggar; Sanders, Farmington; Riddle, Grafton; Pugh, Bowlesburg; Lojeta, Piedmont; John Phares, Elkins; Peterson, Kline; Bradford, Pennsboro; Black, Cameron, and D'Orazio, Wheeling.

Jeby-Battaglia Bout Arranged

CHICAGO, March 7.—(AP.)—Ben Jeby, busy New York middleweight, and Frank Battaglia, of Winnipeg, Man., have been matched for a 10-round bout supporting the world light-heavyweight title bout between Dave Maier, of Milwaukee, and George Nichols, of Buffalo, N. Y., at the Chicago Stadium, March 18.

Another 10-rounder also has been signed, in which James J. Braddock, of New York, and Baxter Calmes, Oklahoma City heavyweight, will clash.

BOWLER ROLLS 300

TOLEDO, O., March 7.—(AP.)—Leo Honeberger, Toledo bowler, rolled a perfect game of 300 in a match between two all-star teams here last night. He put together games of 247 and 238 with his perfect game for a 771 total.

Veteran of bouts against Archie Bell, Vidal Gregorio, Willie Davies, Mose Butch and others, Jimmy tonight meets the bantamweight champion of France, Emile (Spider) Pladner, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden. A victory will enhance his reputation no little and will make Jimmy Thomas his name known in Europe as well as the United States, where he already ranks high in the ratings of his division.

Pladner is making only his second start in this country. He fought a draw with Anton Kocsis, of Hungary, a little more than a week ago, in New York's Madison Square Garden. His performances against Frankie Genaro and others of note in Europe are well known. He is managed by Louis DePonthieu, a famous French lightweight before the World War, who lost an arm in the conflict.

PILOT FORMER STAR

DePonthieu first came to this country in 1911 and boxed Battling Nelson, Frank Mantell, Joe Coster, Billy Marchant, Young Shugrue, Freddie Yelle, Matty Baldwin, Tommy O'Keefe, Eddie Kelly and Johnny Griffiths on this side. He boxed two 12-round, no-decision bouts in Youngstown in 1912, against Shugrue and Griffiths, both topliners. Upon his arrival in Pittsburgh with Pladner on Saturday, DePonthieu renewed his friendship with Frank Klaus, of Braddock, former middleweight champion of the world, whom he first met back in 1912, when Frank was campaigning against Georges Carpentier, Billy Papke and other stars in Paris.

Yes, sir, the Pladner bout is a grand and glorious opportunity for little Jimmy Thomas. It gives him a chance to bask in the international limelight in a boxing way and may put him forward as a real contender for titular honors.

GIZZY BOXES LORD

In another 10-rounder, Thomas' stablemate, Battling Gizzy, whirlwind lightweight, of Donora, takes on Eddie Lord, of Hartford, Conn., and Cleveland, a clever veteran campaigner, who may prove quite a stumbling block. Lord recently has beaten Ray Miller and a few other highly-touted foes.

Guy Salerno, Jack Perry's middleweight from Los Angeles, boxes K. O. Kelley, Akron Negro veteran, in the eight-round second bout, and Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, and Kenny Davis, of East Liverpool, O., open the show with a six-rounder at 8:30.

Between Rounds

Cuffy Klaus and Steve Libenschek, heavyweights, box the main bout of an amateur show in Masonic Hall, North Side, tonight under the auspices of the Young Men's Republican Club. In other bouts, Ham Mawhinney meets Bill Nitchy, Al Phillips takes on Joe Coatti, Bill Zurich tangles with Speed McAllister, Paul Schnei-

Babe Ruth has not yet scratched his indorsement on a new contract, but as the whole tiff is only over a matter of $10,000 that is the same as Babe and Rupert arguing over a package of seeds.

Steel Industry Enters Critical Period With Prospects Uncertain.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE STEEL INDUSTRY is entering another critical period. Coming weeks may prove to be indications of whether business is to turn upward or to continue receding.

Statements for the first quarter of the year will be no better than those of the final three months of 1931 when a large share of the producers reported losses. The increase in steel mill activity in January was far below normal proportions. Production declined in February instead of increasing as it did in nearly all years in the past. At no time this year has output been above 30 per cent of capacity. The present level of operations is a less than 25 per cent of capacity.

The steel trade is hopeful—hopeful that Ford orders will be placed in sufficient volume to buck up sagging production schedules this month—hopeful that other automobile producers will get into real production when warmer weather comes—hopeful that the financial assistance being given railroads will permit them to take deliveries of rails and other maintenance materials.

* * *

Expected Business Has Not Been Placed

BUOYED BY THESE prospects for future business, the steel trade is taking a fairly optimistic view of the coming months but, in the meantime, demand is slumping. Sales from these anticipated sources have not materialized and there is little evidence on which to base any reasonable estimate of the probable tonnage to be rolled to meet these requirements.

If demand for steel takes on new life this month, the recovery will be too late to have any material effect on first quarter earnings. It may, however, have a pronounced influence on second quarter profits if the improvement is lasting and not a mere flash in the pan. If the steel business does not improve within the next month, it will be unlikely to show any material change until autumn since the summer months are almost invariably quiet ones in this industry.

Attempt to Stabilize Price Is Important

THE SUCCESS OF a concerted attempt to stabilize steel prices will have much to do with earnings in the second quarter. All the leading producers are attempting to enforce prices of 1.60 cents a pound, Pittsburgh, for bars, plates and shapes for second quarter delivery. This will reestablish the levels which prevailed during most of 1931 up to last December. If the move is successful a further advance may be expected for third quarter delivery regardless of the volume of business.

The reason the wage and salary cuts made by the steel industry did not have any material influence on earnings is entirely attributable to the fact that the producers passed these savings on to consumers. The industry would have been just as well off without the wage cut since mills would not have felt that they had a saving in costs to use in shading prices in futile attempts to get business.

'CHEAP' COPPER IS SCARCE

NEW YORK, March 7.—Copper demand in the domestic market is quiet, but custom smelters and producers are not anxious to sell. Foreign sales this morning were made at 6⅝c, c. i. f. Hamburg, Havre and London, as there were no offerings under the official price.

While some copper can be obtained in the domestic market at 6¼ to 6⅜ cents delivered, producers are holding at 6½ cents a pound delivered, and that price would have to be paid if much metal were desired.

Progress is being made in conferences on curtailment and it begins to be reasonably assured that accord will be arrived at in principle in the next few days.

Lone Star Changes Dividend Policy

Lone Star Gas Corporation will discontinue cash dividends on its common stock and make future payments in a new 6 per cent preferred stock, beginning next June, it was learned today. The company has a cash dividend of 15 cents payable March 15. Payments in the stock will be made at the rate of 16 cents per common share. The new stock will be a $100 par cumulative issue. It will be convertible into common at the rate of one for seven.

California Crude Oil Output Gains

LOS ANGELES, March 7. — California crude oil production in the week ended March 5 averaged 499,650 barrels daily, compared with 499,250 barrels daily in the week preceding, according to the California Oil World.

STOCK MARKET TURNS DULL ON SLUMP

Several Leaders Decline 1 to 8 Points as List Reacts From Early Rise

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP.)—The stock market once more encountered selling at the top level of the trading range of the past three months today.

Speculators for the rise endeavored to extend last week's advance by bidding up food and miscellaneous shares in the morning, but found the list lost. After the first hour a slow decline set in, which carried several leaders 1 to 8 points under Saturday's final prices.

American Telephone was heavy from the start and by early afternoon was off about 3 points. Losses of 1 to 2 points appeared in such issues as American Can, United States Steel, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific, North American, Consolidated Gas, Loew's, Worthworth and Penney. Safeway, a recent bull favorite, lost 3. Peoples Gas was a strong spot, pushing up more than 7. Homestake Mining, another volatile issue, gained as much. Such issues as National Biscuit, Borden, Corn Products and Lambert gained 1 to 2 points early and held up fairly well.

A moderate reaction, after as vigorous a rise as that of Saturday, was not regarded as surprising in brokerage circles. The market promptly turned dull on the reaction. The rank and file of traders, however, were inclined to hold to the sidelines pending a real test of the market which was expected to come when bulls try to push the averages decisively into new high ground for the year. The market has made three tops so far this year, once in January, again in February and finally last Saturday.

Wall street sentiment remained moderately cheerful, but week-end news failed to provide any tangible signs of the seasonal increase.

The week-end steel reviews reported slight improvement in structural and railroad buying, but continued slackness in demand for automobile makers. March automobile output, however, is now being estimated at about 150,000 units, or some 15 per cent over February.

Money was a little firmer at the start of the week with no outside call money offered under the official rate of 2½ per cent. The $900,000,000 in new Treasury financing, in the form of short term certificates, however, was interpreted as indicating a belief that credit would continue to improve, resulting in better conditions for a bond issue later.

CHANGES SEEN IN TRADE AND FINANCE

Machinery Set in Motion For Recovery; Only Thing Now Needed Is Volume

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 7. — The chief change since the recent era of dire calamity has been in the attitude of the business and financial community, which again is developing a vision of the possibility of economic recovery.

The props for the tentative and gradual revival of qualified hopefulness consisted of the reconstruction program at Washington which has ended the credit difficulties. As long as the dominating motif was mutual fears among depositors and banks, normal business could not go on. The machinery has been set up for calming the fears and enabling banks to resume their function of financing trade, which rests on credit or mutual trust.

Mr. Rukeyser

ADJUST SELVES

Recently the security markets, especially the bond market, have started to adjust themselves to the probability that profit makers would soon begin to take advantage of the new opportunities to enlarge business volume and profits.

The chief factor which industry and transportation are suffering from at present is insufficient physical volume of trade. Our business institutions are geared up to a far larger volume and cannot sufficiently reduce fixed overhead to operate economically under subnormal conditions. An enlargement in the volume of trade, which would follow a resumption of the willingness and ability of the public to buy, would enable industry and the railroads to improve their profit position by cutting down their unit costs through taking advantage of the economies of mass production and mass distribution.

FREIGHT NEEDED

Nearly all the current talk about the plight of the railroads, for example, is somewhat beside the point. The railroads immediate difficulty is ascribable to the reduced volume of traffic. One of the ablest railroad financiers in the country told me that if a certain group of well-managed carriers could increase their volume of freight traffic 20 per cent they would be out of the woods financially. He said further that on the volume of business handled in the depression year, 1930, his carriers could earn 1929 peak net profits, as a result of operating economies which have been introduced.

Many industries, to get back on a profitable basis, have to do far better than increase their volume 20 per cent. The steel industry, for example, perhaps, has to double its volume. And there can be no substantial improvement in the barometric steel industry without a consequent gain in railroad car loadings. Furthermore, the carriers, unlike industry, can enter the period of economic recovery with peak freight schedules, whereas industry is harassed with low and inadequate prices, which must be lifted.

Roads Ask I. C. C. To Dismiss Petition

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(INS.)—The Pennsylvania and Long Island railroads have asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to deny the petition of the New York Transit Commission for a rehearing in the case involving the use of the Pennsylvania Station in New York City and other facilities by the Long Island road.

The commission recently approved a contract between the two roads under which rental of the station by the Long Island would be increased more than $1,000,000 annually.

EMBERS OF LOVE -:- Story of a Pretty Girl in Whom Burned The Flame of a Great Emotion -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Lily Lou read the announcement of Miss Peggy Alexandria Sage's engagement to Kentfield Carey Sargent III.

Ken . . . engaged to the Sage girl, just as if he wasn't . . . as if they hadn't been married . . .

She sat down on the arm of a chair, suddenly conscious that her heart was thudding painfully. She thought, "He might have written me . . . it would have been . . . the gracious thing . . ."

Not that it mattered, of course. Their marriage was annulled. She was nothing to Ken. He was nothing to her. Naturally Peggy got him on the rebound . . . well, maybe they'd all be satisfied now. Ken's mother. His red-faced fattish father. All of them.

The room was very warm. She got up and opened the window, standing close to it, glad of the cool autumn air.

It occurred to her that the hills would be green again in California. The new grass would be forcing its way up through the golden stubble of summer. Like spring, out there. A new stirring of life. Thirsty things freshening in the first rains. And here, autumn. Death . . . frost touching flowers and blasting them . . . chill settling . . .

"I hope they'll be happy," she thought, closing the window, powdering her nose as automatically as she had answered. "There's no reason why they shouldn't. I don't wish them any hard luck."

NOTHING TO SAY

It seemed to her that she was taking it very bravely—like the sort of girl she always pretended to be to Ken . . . and really wasn't. She felt almost happy for a moment, and then she realized that it didn't matter how she took it. She hadn't anything to say. She was cast out, forgotten. They hadn't asked her opinion or approval. It was just as it was the first time. No choice. She'd never really given him up . . . He just gave her up.

"Lily Lou! Dinner's waiting, dear."

Mrs. Manchester's voice.

"Coming!"

She looked at herself in the mirror. She looked quite as usual. Quite as if nothing had happened.

During dinner she was preoccupied, planning the sort of letter she would write to May. She would have to say something. May would expect her to say something.

She was startled to see that her plate was empty.

Funny how you can eat, and sleep, and go on living, and your heart all dead.

Days passed. A week. Two weeks.

Lily Lou was so gay that Mrs. Manchester was a little alarmed. It didn't suit her. Why couldn't she be her type, and leave the other sort of thing to Maxine? Now if she was going to turn out giddy and silly, instead of attending to her music and making it worth your while to look after her.

TRIES TO BE CAREFREE

Some hint of Mrs. Manchester's displeasure came to Lily Lou, finally. She didn't know what she had done, or left undone, to displease her. "The dickens with her!" she thought, trying to be carefree and independent like Maxine. That was the way to get through life—Maxine's way—just laugh, and don't think . . .

Yes, and that was the trouble. When she wanted to think she couldn't. She couldn't practice. No use having her voice tried while she felt like this. Wait . . . just a little longer. Don't let yourself get panicky. Don't give in to it . . . Don't get scared, or you're lost. Stop worrying, put your mind on Wanda's bookkeeping.

That bookkeeping was terrible. She worked on it every morning, but it was so hard to make head or tail of Wanda's figures, and she flew into such a temper when you asked her questions.

"The Hawleys haven't paid for two months, Miss Pillsbury. Hadn't I better send them a statement?"

"Yes, but if you—"

WORK BECOMES BORING

"Who's running this class? It's my money isn't it? Don't get me all upset now. I've got a full afternoon ahead. Look and see if I paid the Marshall Ormsby people for those sandals, will you? You can't find it! My God, Lansing, what kind of a bookkeeper are you? Well, never mind. I think I did and I forgot to make a stub in the check book. Mark it paid, and if I didn't pay it they'll send a collector or something. Honey child, could you just leave that bookkeeping, and walk over as far as Lexington—you know that hole in the wall where you can buy bread and stuff, and fix us some lunch. And stop and get me a brassiere at Lord's—the lace kind, with the low back, two-ninety-five . . . or did I get it at Macy's? Well, just get anything, and you can exchange it if it's wrong. Thirty-four, and if it runs small, get a 36. And hurry, will you, dear?"

Sometimes Lily Lou thought she'd go mad. She didn't know which was the worst, being bookkeeper, janitress and personal maid in the morning, or playing the piano in the afternoons.

"Step, slide, step, step, slide, step—Evelyn! Pay attention! All right, Lansing, start again. One, two, three, two—"

At night she was too tired to do anything but crawl into bed. Lie there like a log and sleep came. Keep your mind blank . . . don't think, don't think. Laugh! Because if you don't laugh, you'll cry.

The family kept writing. "Aren't you studying yet? Tolari isn't the only teacher in New York. Are you sure you are well?"

FAINTS ON FIRE ESCAPE

That was it. She wasn't well. It was because Wanda kept the studio too hot.

"I can't get used to all that steam heat, and it isn't cold, really. Couldn't we have the transom open?" she begged.

Wanda Pillsbury looked at Lily Lou with a strange gleam in her eye. "What is the matter with you, Lansing? You haven't been up to any mischief, have you?"

"I don't know what you mean. But I tell you, I'm stifling. It's so ghastly hot I can't stand it. I don't see how the children—"

"The children are all right. So am I. Now don't have hysterics. You aren't going to faint on me, are you? Get out in the hall and get some air. I'll use the records for a few minutes. Come on, girlies, the gypsy dance, all together. Ta, ta, ta—ta, ta, ta!"

Lily Lou went out into the hall. She walked to the fire escape in the rear and opened the door that led out to the rusty iron landing. Someone opened the door of the studio next to it. It was Dwight Gwin, the big, gray-haired man who coached professionals.

"Hello," he said, and then he stopped and stared at her curiously. "You're not ill, are you? I wouldn't go out there if I were you. Wait! Take my arm!"

Lily Lou saw the tall, loose-jointed figure coming toward her, and motioned him back, her already overstrained nerves jangling at the thought of one more prying question. "I'm quite all right, thanks," she said. "Just—warm!"

She took another backward step and grabbed at the rail. It wasn't there. Nothing was there. She closed her eyes, as the whole world seemed to slip away beneath her.

The whole world seemed to slip beneath her.

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing, young and pretty telephone operator, gives up her opportunity for an operatic career to marry wealthy Ken Sargent. Ken's mother threatens to have the marriage annulled. Ken loses his position with his father, but secures a better one. The young couple take a small apartment and are ideally happy. Then, one night, Lily Lou awakens to hear Ken sobbing. Next day, Lily Lou meets Peggy Sage, an old friend of Ken's and is stunned to learn from her that Ken lost his job. Later, she is relieved when Ken explained he did not take her into his confidence because he wanted her to be proud of him. After Ken leaves the next morning, a knock comes to the door. It is Ken's father. He asks Lily Lou to give up Ken and informs her their marriage was annulled. He gives her $500 and Lily Lou goes to New York. Her money soon begins to run low. She gets a position playing the piano for a dancing teacher. Her search for the vocal teacher she wanted fails.

Now Go On

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

"DEAR MARK:" writes Preston Gigglio, "You may be interested to learn that one of the better gambling houses in the city is located in an ultra-smart home on upper Riverside drive. The joint spells class with a capital C. It's a pleasure to lose money there—almost.

"When you enter the spot you immediately plank down $500, for which you receive the equivalent in chips. You then go to the third floor, where the roulette wheels, the bird cages and the dice games are all in full swing. On the second floor is the restaurant and the bar. Food and cigars are both free. The only things you pay for in this house are your gambling debts and your drinks. Drinks, incidentally, are $3 each.

"A couple of young bloods from Park avenue, both with far more nerve than money, were invited to the house. They liked it—and they thought they found a way to beat the game. They bought their chips, never went near the gambling room, ate their fill and purchased one or two drinks. They then cashed their chips and departed with an expenditure of $6 each for an evening's diversion.

"They did this several times and were enjoying themselves hugely. Last week, they tried it again. Each one had two drinks. When the bill came around, it read $800—or $200 a drink. The boys almost fainted from the shock. They finally recovered sufficiently to ask how come.

"'Well,' said the manager of the house, 'you fellows have been here three times without spending any dough. Now you're going to spend. Our price for those four drinks is $800. You'd better pay.'

"They paid. And they've never gone back since."

"DEAR MARK": Writes Al Schwartz. "There's a saying that truth is stranger than fiction, but there's something that's stranger than both. That something was a friendship that existed between a Broadway guy and a Scotchman. Laff that off!

"Where and how they met is beside the point. It may have been on Greta Garbo's big toe, or any other place you might care to mention. The fact remains that they met—and you have a story. In a couple of months, they became devoted Pals. You know what I mean: what the Broadway guy had was the Scotchman's, and what the Scot had—well, the Scot had.

"They continued to get along in fine style in spite of the fact that this Scotchman was even tighter than the ones you generally read about in the Broadway columns. When our Broadway friend would go to a night club and coo with a particular blonde, the Scot would stay at home and talk to the telephone operators.

"Came a day when the Scotchman found himself in need of $100. He went to his Broadway friend, and the latter gentleman promptly came to the rescue. He yanked the hundred bucks from his pocket and turned it over without a word. The words came in later weeks when the Broadway guy asked the Scot to return his money. Whenever that happened the Scot shook his head and said he couldn't do it at the moment.

"Well, since all good things must come to an end, the blonde mentioned heretofore hooked our friend, and they planned to get married. That is, he wanted to marry for better or worse—and she knew she couldn't get the better of him. Feeling that he could now use his $100 more than ever, he wired his Scotch pal and told him of the sappy event.

"The following morning when he awakened there was another telegram from his Broadway friend. It was short and concise.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Nearly a whole theater-full of Junior Komic Club members attended their regular meeting in the Harris South Hills Theater Saturday. There were so many present and everybody was so happy and talkative and excited that—well, it just seemed as though the whole 3,000 membership was there.

Anyway, everybody had a wonderful time. Joe Cardarelli, the Grand Jester, opened the meeting by having everyone repeat the Komic Club pledge. Then Harry Koch, manager of the theater, told everybody about the Popeye comic coloring contest the Sun-Telegraph announced in yesterday's paper for Club members.

PRIZES OFFERED

One member in each district of the Junior Komic Club will receive a white sweater with the club emblem on the front of it as a prize for sending in the best coloring of the Popeye comic.

Unusual talent was displayed during Saturday's meeting when Virginia Young and Caroline Blair did a tap dance to "School Days," and Doris Ashton danced to "Moonlight Saving Time." The Grand Jester, Joe Cardarelli, sang "All of Me" as though he were a regular stage or radio star.

There was a singing contest between the girls and the boys, too, but Manager Koch couldn't decide which were the best so called it a tie.

SERIAL MOVIE

A new serial movie opened at the meeting Saturday. It's called "Detective Lloyd," with Jack Lloyd, Muriel Angelus and Wallace Geoffrey, and is full of thrills and excitement, with the detective locked in a gas-filled room at the end of the first installment.

South Hills members who have birthdays tomorrow are Roy Skeehan, Frank Hubbard, Richard Lawler, George Cortese and Frank Franchini. We wish all of them a very happy birthday.

Children's Ingratitude

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

In the midst of tea and melty little cakes the mother said to me: "Jane is an ungrateful little animal," and it was with regret that I had to swallow a mouthful of cake unchewed to reply: "Well, aren't we all? The mother wanted to know what I meant.

It seems that her daughter, a high school girl, takes all the mother's work, time, and effort for granted and sometimes even objects because results aren't quite what she expects.

I had to remind that mother of a day long ago when she and I sat and pulled threads through tiny tucks to be tied on the under side of graduating dresses. "My mother's mean," I told her. "So's yours to make us sit and tie these threads when we want to be doing other things." Now I remember clearly that I really and truly believed we were each the objects of a deliberate persecution. Did we stop to think that our mothers should have been thanked for MAKING the dresses with their millions of small tucks? Not for a minute. We only felt that we were imposed upon because we had to help a little bit. "Ungrateful little animals!"

"I remember," said the mother. "I wonder why children take it all for granted like that?"

"We have to learn to be grateful," I told her. And I remembered when my mother had reminded me she had sewed far into the night when I was sleeping in order to finish the graduation dress, that I realized I'd been selfish in objecting to even helping her for an hour. But I didn't realize it before. Children don't, until their attention is called to efforts and sacrifices made for them.

And I don't advocate labeling each act for a child and saying, "Now be thankful." A far better method of creating appreciation is to ask the children to do things for you, to praise and appreciate it when it has been done. Give the child a memory of how long it takes to press a dress, or concoct a favorite dessert, and he will appreciate your effort in doing it for him. Start when he is a very young child, for it takes a long while to develop gratitude and appreciation of the other fellow's efforts for our comfort.

The Rhyming Optimist

Flames

The stealthy darkness whence the moon in flight
Has passed, and left no shining shaft behind
Insistent night without, but here the sun
And summer wait, for this great log once stood

They can recall the leafy forest aisles,
The shafts of sunlight and the wind's sweet wiles.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Perhaps you have relatives who have not done well financially.

Their manners may lack a sort of cultivation that you may have attained because of your larger opportunities of associating with those from whom you have learned much.

But the advantages you have had have not added one bit to your real value if you have drifted away in interest and love from those of family connections.

If your advancement has caused you to be ashamed of your blood relations you do not deserve your good fortune.

It is a severe shock and a most painful experience for close relatives to realize that they are no longer welcome in the home of one of their own who has stepped up in station.

To be ashamed of one's family because they are poor, if they are honest and honorable, is little short of disgraceful.

Try Harris Plan First

Taxes Should Not Be Raised for Unemployed Relief Until Further Appeal Is Made to the Well-to-Do.

City Council has been asked by the Allegheny County Emergency Association to appropriate $500,000 at once for the relief of the unemployed and to borrow $5,000,000 more for the same purpose through a bond issue which the people will be asked to authorize in the primary election of April 26.

In addition it is proposed to ask the county to issue $10,000,000 of bonds for unemployment relief.

Some of the money that it is proposed to raise through these bond issues will, if the plan is successful, be handed out to the poor in the un-American form of a dole.

How much better it would be to provide wages which could be accepted by the destitute without any loss of self-respect, wages which would be paid for work on useful public projects such as the town hall and the subway.

The people have already authorized the city to issue 6,000,000 of bonds for the construction of the subway, and ave authorized the county to issue $6,000,000 of bonds for he construction of the town hall. Why is this money not raised? Why are these projects not started? Why are wages not being paid to Pittsburgh workmen, now idle, for work on these desirable improvements?

The subway could be built without any increase in the taxes for at least three years because of a provision in the State Constitution authorizing the use of part of the proceeds of the bond issue for the payment of interest on the bonds until a year after the subway has been completed and is in operation.

The new bonds which the Emergency Association proposes would, on the other hand, necessitate an increase in taxes beginning next year. AND THE SMALL PROPERTY OWNERS OF PITTSBURGH CANNOT STAND AN INCREASE IN TAXES.

There is already a deficit of $916,000 from last year that the taxpayers are going to be called upon to pay.

If the proposed $5,000,000 of bonds should be issued at 4½ per cent—and we may have to pay 5 per cent—the interest the first year would be $225,000, and to that we would have add $250,000 for sinking fund purposes, assuming that the nds would mature in 20 years. Add the $500,000 emer-ncy appropriation, and we have a total of $1,891,000 that the taxpayers would be called upon to pay next year over and above the normal budget. That would mean an increase of almost 3 mills in the tax rate, for it takes 1 mill to produce $700,000.

It is to be borne in mind, too, that the interest over 20 years at 4½ per cent would amount to $2,362,500, and that the burden of increased taxes would have to be carried over that long period.

An appeal should be made to the well-to-do to come to the rescue and save the taxpayers from the proposed burden.

Let Senator Frank J. Harris' plan be tried before more bonds are issued for poor relief. He asks 35,000 persons to take care of one poor family each until June. It will take $100 a family, or at the rate of about $33 a month.

There are enough well-to-do people in the community to meet this need. Why impose a further burden on the poor in the form of higher taxes on their homes?

Traffic Troubles

James M. Clark, Director of Public Safety, has been expressing impatience with City Council because of its indifference to the automobile traffic troubles with which Director Clark is constantly being called upon to cope.

His latest criticism is of Council's delay in acting on the proposal that a city garage be established in which cars seized for violations of the law may be stored. He points out that the hands of the police are tied in dealing with illegally parked cars, and also that the city would receive considerable money in payment of towing and storage charges if it maintained its own garage.

Director Clark alludes again to the vicious "tag-fixing" system under which persons with influential politician friends are excused from answering for traffic violations. He says the system continues to flourish, but that Council has the power to abolish it.

Director Clark is justified in much of his criticism. Council has shamefully neglected its duty in respect to the traffic problem.

Especially deplorable is its failure to enact the codified traffic ordinance prepared by the Better Traffic Committee after years of study and indorsed by numerous civic and trade bodies.

That ordinance, first presented to Council in December, 1929, and resubmitted a number of times since, has an "anti-tag fixing" provision which would do away with much of the favoritism that Director Clark complains about.

Legion Deserves Support

It Is Up to Public-Spirited Citizens to Help in Drive Against Unemployment.

The smashing offensive of the American Legion against unemployment deserves the whole-hearted support of every employer of labor in the country.

Since the Legion drive started, more than 150,000 jobless men and women have been placed in jobs.

The goal of "work for one million" which the Legion has set can be reached and will be reached if the American people rally to the call for action.

The response to the Legion's appeal already has been widespread.

The American Federation of Labor, the Association of National Advertisers, the Legion Auxiliary and several thousand fraternal organizations are actively co-operating.

Job-getting companies are being formed in 8,000 cities and towns. These committees will direct the campaign of 10,800 Legion posts and 30,000 local labor unions.

YOU can help by giving a job whether you employ thousands or are merely a home owner with a few hours' repair work about your premises. Your aid is needed.

Your government lacks courage to face these facts. It is up to you as a public-spirited American citizen to face them.

The Legion points the way.

So There'll Be No Mistake

Thus does the Bear-that-Walks-like-a-Man inform Tokio as the cables bring the news that "White" Russian Guards are fraternizing with the Japanese troops at Harbin, in the Kirin Province of Manchuria, and that the Japanese troops have found it necessary to push eastward along the Chinese Eastern Railway (Soviet-controlled) into the Heilungkiang Province toward Tsitsihar "to punish Chinese rebels."

And Japan will respect the Bear because the Russia of today is not the Russia of the Czarist days of the Russo-Japanese War.

Democrats in Hoover Steps Headed by His Pitfalls

IF imitation is the sincerest of flattery, President Hoover must be deeply gratified by the faithful obeisance of the Democratic tail to the administration kite.

President Hoover employed the long recess of Congress, when he refused to call it to sit in extra session, by formulating a so-called program of economic relief, WITH THE ASTUTE ASSISTANCE OF THE BANKERS.

He submitted that program to Congress on January 3, and found that body utterly unprepared with a program of its own.

Three months have passed since Congress assembled, AND THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY IS STILL WITHOUT AN ADEQUATE PROGRAM OF ITS OWN.

The contribution of the Democratic party to the seven millions of unemployed is the House bill making a niggardly appropriation of $132,500,000 for road construction.

This is a grotesquely inadequate sum. It reveals an "abysmal ignorance" on the part of the Democratic Congress of the magnitude of the economic evils which it seeks to relieve.

By following the President's tortuous windings THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY IS LIKELY TO TERMINATE IN HIS PITFALLS.

The Democrats seem to be over-cautious about everything except the one thing of DUPLICATING PRESIDENT HOOVER'S MISTAKES.

If, as Speaker Garner says, President Hoover has led the nation into the greatest panic of all time, how can the Democrats hope to lead the nation out of the panic by following Hoover's lead?

There would be a little more point to Garner's criticism if the Democrats of the House had a plan of their own and a Democratic one.

A Democratic plan, and the one which will most speed the return of prosperity, would be to give employment to those able and willing to work, and there are over seven millions of them hunting for jobs!

It is unfortunate for the other leaders of the Democratic party that former Gov. Smith is the only big Democratic leader who has adopted the $5,000,000,000 loan for public works and for relief of unemployment. And it is unfortunate, too, that he has abandoned the advocacy for fear of offending his Wall street friends.

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue would take the country's hoarded money out of hiding in the most effective way that frightened money can be restored to confidence.

It would enable the government to put the timid money and the hungry unemployed to work together for the common salvation of all the people.

Why do not the Democrats pass this Democratic measure?

Why does not the party of the people HELP THE PEOPLE?

Why does the Democratic party rest content with the Republican plan of FINANCING THE FINANCIERS?

IF both parties are to devote themselves to reimbursing the international bankers who have wasted the people's money in foreign failures for crooked commissions;

If both parties are to dispute for the proud privilege of recouping the reckless speculators and rehabilitating the plundering promoters of worthless securities;

If both parties are to be the accomplices of the swindlers and pillagers and neither party is to give sympathetic consideration to the plight of the plain people who have been robbed of their savings and their jobs;

Then the time would seem to be ripe and the occasion urgent for the creation of a third party which shall be a popular party, an American party, an honest party with the public welfare sincerely at heart and the interests of our own American people primarily in mind.

And heavenly day! If all the dissatisfied Republicans and disappointed Democrats and worthy citizens disgusted with both parties would join the new party, there would not be enough votes cast for the old parties to make it worth while to count the ballots.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 7.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes watching workmen install our gallant mirror from a Normandy chateau and stood this way and that before it until my wife inquired: "Enjoying yourself. Good Looking?" Came a basket of jelly Margaret Illington made and a post card from Adolph and Katherine Menjou in St. Moritz.

So through town and Elsie Janis introduced her new husband, an upstanding fellow, and to Rian James' flat in Horatio street to see his beautiful Lellywn setter recovering from a strange paralysis. And so brave and affectionate we both wept.

In the evening with Hamish and Aimee McLaurin and my wife to Geraldine Farrar's and she lovelier than ever. All to dinner at the Crillon and after we to Sadie Murray's after-theater party where came Leon Errol, the Harry Tierneys, Lois Long, Lewis Gensler and Esmond O'Brien.

In our town was always a local of somewhat tarnished refinement pointed out as once attending a banquet in an urban capital where watermelon soaked in champagne was served. A chef tells me the surest way to spoil both watermelon and champagne is to mix them.

Visiting Hollywood this winter, Claire Boothe Brokaw took H. G. Wells for a spin through the Beverly canyons. It was the British author's first ride in a flivver. After a time he commented: "A rattling nippy little bit, rather!"

Harry Evans tells of a Stokowski concert at Carnegie Hall. In the front row a sour-visaged fellow seemed utterly bored by the marvelous music. So much so indeed the conductor became annoyed. Also curious. At the intermission he leaned over the footlights and inquired: "I fear you do not like me?" The gentleman replied indifferently: "O, yes I do." Stokowski persisted: "Perhaps you don't like Beethoven?" He said he did. Finally the leader ventured: "Don't you like my conducting?" He said he did. Then sighed: "I just don't like music."

A grisly parlor diversion of certain intellectuals is called the Mortuary Sweepstakes and consists of players selecting the most likely celebrity candidate for the inevitable crossing of the Styx. The auctioneer—called the actuary—inspires bidding by orating on how this candidate and that is tottering toward Charon's boat, quotes the latest reports on blood pressure and other gruesome details. Another selling talk is about how little a candidate is eating lately. When the successful bidder's candidate fades from the earthly picture, he or she wins the entire pool. And yet intellectuals boast of an improved civilization.

That sterling actor, Sidney Blackmer, sends a clipping explaining origin of "ham" as applied to stage folk. Before use of grease paint, actors coated their faces with ham fat before applying colors. They were known as "ham fatters." This was shortened to "ham."

On Riverside Drive as dusk is yeasting its magic along that glowering sheer drop of the Palisades and myriad flashing beacons—like signal lights proclaiming Caesar's fresh triumphs in Gaul. Swift and clean as a falcon, they skip the Hudson in a dazzling panorama against the cyclorama of Jersey's hills. Some are searchlights from hotels, others direct airplanes and ballyhoo the stuffed whale and other catch-penny exhibits for sailors. I commend the parapet on fogless nights to all husband who have been leaving spoons in the coffee cup or otherwise feel like wandering into the garden to gulp a woolly worm.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Young Love

Every woman should have Young Love in her life, at least once. There is no other love quite like it—so glamorous, so radiant, so ecstatic!

* * *

That is why, when I heard that Elsie Janis had taken a fling at Young Love, and married a handsome boy, I gave that little girl a Great Big Hand! I was positively joyful!

* * *

I knew Elsie Janis, in pre-war days, when she was turning away young lovers by the gross. And I have a very clear idea of how many offers of marriage America's most popular woman has passed up.

Apparently, she agrees with me that "there IS a life, after 40;" and that no woman's heart should curl up like a cat and go to sleep, when the clock strikes 35. There is no deadline for an interesting and fascinating woman, and no age limit to her charm.

* * *

But, when Miss Janis says (as she does in her recent book, "So Far, So Good") that "two years of perfect happiness" are enough for any women, and modestly declares that she "would not expect to hold a husband for more than two years," she asks too much in the first place—and expects too little in the second.

* * *

That's the trouble with most big-hearted, fair-minded, generous women. They demand too little and give too much.

Fate and men are alike in one thing. They always find out just how little you'll accept—and then give you just a little LESS. When a woman demands everything she usually gets a lot. When she demands only a fair amount, she gets a little. But when she demands only a little, she gets nothing.

* * *

Why put a time limit on a husband's love? No man who has ever loved a woman like La Janis—with her wit, her charm, her personality, her glamour, her sanity and sweetness—could ever get OVER loving her. A woman like that, somehow, gets into a man's subconsciousness — and he can never get her out!

* * *

But "two years of perfect happiness!" There's no such thing! Even when your marriage is a glamorous adventure of Young Love, you've got to face the storms and risk the upsettings. They're part of the adventure! Two years of bliss, perhaps—but even a fight would be a blissful relief from "perfect happiness."

* * *

Marriage is a partnership, in which you share everything and build a life together. Unless it is exactly THAT it is a very dull and deadly affair. Elsie and her young Prince Charming may build a new life, a home and a career; they may share their hopes, their dreams and their fights. That is what marriage is FOR—that is what makes it worth all the price you pay!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

How many lies does Teacher tell little Willie?

Plenty!—says Dr. John Dewey of Columbia University. Not that teacher really wants to be a liar—explains the famous educator. But she has no choice in the matter.

WE AMERICAN TAXPAYERS WON'T LET TEACHER TELL THE TRUTH!

SHE MUST LIE OR LOSE HER JOB!

What is Teacher's job? Theoretically it is to tell little Willie the facts about the world in which he lives. Which sounds easy. Actually, it is anything but. For the facts about this modern world are neither pretty nor popular. We are no longer the nice, neighborly folk we were in grandpa's day. Nor can we run our jobs by his copybook axioms. This twentieth century is both complicated and cussed, and filled with sickening surprises for simple souls.

Now, obviously, if little Willie is to succeed in this highly precarious society, someone should teach him the rules of the game. He should be told how our life is organized—and how it ISN'T organized. He should learn about the incompetence, stupidity, dishonesty, cowardice, hypocrisy and general unhappiness which he will meet in every department of his public or private life. He should be given some sort of a code—moral, economic and political—by which he may live in the year 1932, and with the sort of human we're turning out this season.

But who's going to perform this service for little Willie? Teacher should—of course. But can you imagine her even starting?

Suppose she should inform them that America is not the smartest nor the friendliest nation on earth nor, in many respects, the most enlightened or honest . . .

Suppose Miss Jones, with her students' interests and her country's future at heart, should loyally arise and do all this—WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO MISS JONES?

You know as well as I do what would happen.

BY SUNDOWN EVERY PARENT IN MISS JONES' SCHOOL DISTRICT WOULD BE DENOUNCING HER AS A "RED"... AND BY SUNUP MISS JONES WOULD BE OUTWARD BOUND WITH A NONSTOP TICKET TO NOWHERE.

That's why—says Dr. John Dewey. We, ourselves, won't let 'em.

"It has become 'unpatriotic' to point out or even admit that there are any weak spots in our institutions and habits and to suggest that there are matters in which we might learn from other countries. There has been a heavy pall of 'hush-hush' imposed upon teachers and the easy way for them, the way of inertia, has been to become 'yes' men and women."

A heavy pall of hush-hush—

And what is it burying us?

A nation, consumed in its own darkness—

Well, believe me stranger—some day we'll HAVE to face them. And what a general colic that will be!

Isn't It So?

Never judge a man's knowledge of human nature by the opinion he has of himself.

It is said that misery loves company, but the spinster never lived who wasted any sympathy on an old bachelor.

Wise Words

The body is not a home, but an inn; and that only for a short time.—Seneca.

In doing good we are generally cold, and languid, and sluggish; and of all things afraid of being too much in the right. But the works of malice and injustice are quite in another style. They are finished with a bold, masterly hand.—Burke.

LIE WRECKS FAITH

By Winifred Black

A friend fibbed to me the other day. It wasn't a very big fib, and the thing she fibbed about was none of my business, anyhow, but I wish she hadn't done it.

I've been quite fond of this particular friend for quite a long time, and now I find myself sitting and thinking over everything she ever told me in any detail.

To my dismay, I find that my friend had fibbed to me a good many times before, and it makes me ill—actually ill!

People have told me that this particular friend was a little untrustworthy, but I have always defended her; and now here I am convinced against my will.

Queer isn't it, how the truth always manages to escape and get out into the strong light of day, like a rat that you're trying to shut up in the cellar?

The cat is at the foot of the stairs, the windows are closed, the other door is locked, everything is as it should be; but suddenly, just as you go to shut the upper cellar door—scoot! The cat's out, and you'll never trust that upper cellar door again!

My friend is a kindly soul; she's generous and warm-hearted; but now that I have found her out, I shall never believe a word she says again. And it is sometimes very important to be able to believe what people say.

A beggar died in the street of a great city recently. He was a hunchback, very pale and very shabby, but when they took him to the hospital to try to bring him back to life, they found that the hunch upon his back was a sack full of money.

I wish they hadn't published that story. Not that I care what people think of that part of a beggar, but oh, I hate to imagine the poor fellow who will go hungry, just because that story has filled the hearts of thousands of readers with distrust.

That's the way I feel about the fib my friend has told me. I wish she hadn't done it. I should like so much to trust her; and now I never can again.
